Electric Sparks (From off our Wireless) Europe's neutral nations are fast approaching the crisis that confronted the small boys apple core. At the present rate of ocean travel some steamships will soon be advertising for passengers as ballast. Without insinuating anything, one may say that Britain would be pleased to get to Constantinople as soon as Russia or sooner. It may or may not have been a terrible ordeal for the Colonel to tell the story of his life in a courtroom. Japan's need for her citizens may have caused this complete cessation of fears that Oriental labor would compete with the American agriculturist. Any date within six months or so that war experts may set for the beginning of peace will be regarded as hopeful. An orator who finds that converts have backslid is never troubled by any requests for a refund of money paid at the box office. Before another year passes the Hague expects to have a cleanup-paintup season, in preparation for regular business. The Japanese are probably tired of being represented as always looking for trouble on this continent and never finding it. Mexico has not been devoting any funds to long distance calls requesting Huerta to return and take charge of the country's affairs. Italy is waiting to see what effect an announcement of full preparedness for war will have in promoting a prosperous peace. Turning swords into plowshares will seem a comparatively small matter when the times comes for turning fighting ships into merchant vessels. Huerta's statement that he loves Villa and Carranza alike doesn't necessarily afford the preliminaries to a three-cornered embrace. The advantage a man who gives $19,500 for a violin has over one who pays to hear Caruso sing is that the former still has his violin. As Italy hasn't yet broken any of her treaties, her title to a position of prominence among civilized countries trembles in the balance. The quickest and best way to do things is to do but one thing at a time. "I take off my hat to Philadelphia," says Billy Sunday. Billy also passed it around to a good advantage. Perhaps the poets sing their spring songs because it helps them and doesn't hurt spring.

Perhaps the poets sing their spring songs because it helps them and doesn't hurt spring. Panama Canal Traffic Makes Record in March Washington, May 18—Record breaking business passing through the Panama canal in March, according to war department statisticians, would have been approximately 1,800 freight trains of 20 cars each. The cargo handled in 37 days through the canal aggregated 615,057 tons.

The circuit court was in session for the hearing of equity cases, motions, etc. this week. The grand jury met Monday, investigated a number of cases, returned four indictments and adjourned Tuesday being one of the shortest sessions ever held in this county. Next week the regular term of court will begin and from present indications the term will be short.

Case Given to Grand Jury Raymond, Wash., May 18—A grand jury was empanelled this morning at South Bend, and was instructed by the court to investigate the alleged North river night riders' case in particular. Assistant Attorney General John M. Wilson is present and will have charge of the investigation.
