Men as readily die for the wrong as for the right, if they think the wrong right—as is usually the case. Heroism is unmoral anyway.

AFTER FORTY-THREE YEARS

S. S. Coen and Wife Returns to Visit Old Scenes and Greet Old Friends. Many Changes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Coen of Seattle, Washington, who resided in the valley forty-three years ago, were in town Monday morning and made a short visit in the editorial parlor of the Post.

Mr. Coen lived in Rogue River valley for a period of three years in the early seventies, marrying a Jackson county girl, a daughter of the late John Rhoten who resided in Sams Valley, and he and his wife are now spending a few weeks with relatives and friends in the vicinity of Gold Hill.

Mr. Coen remarked that they were glad to visit old scenes and to greet old friends; that they have found a number whose faces were familiar and looked good, but that they find many changes have taken place during their absence; that many old farms have given place to fine orchards and that many commodious and handsome residences have been built on what was waste land forty-three years ago. A few old farms look familiar, one of which is the Granville Sears place, where the same old house, smokehouse and well that were used in 1870, are still in use today.

"It saddens our hearts to find that many of the good old neighbors of forty years ago, among whom we remember Tilo Bell, Ish Hanley, Ross Chambers, Granville Sears, Uncle Tom Cavanaugh and many of the good people of Jacksonville, have passed to the Great Beyond, from which there is no return."

"Some of our friends may be interested in a little of our history. After our marriage we moved first to California, then to Montana, thence to Spokane, and later to Seattle and in each instance was fortunate in a financial way, having finally acquired what to us is a snug fortune, besides having reared a family of ten children. I wish to say that in our travels we have found no place that appeals to us as a home like the beautiful little city of Jacksonville, and if we are spared we hope to meet our friends again."

William Barnes must be converted by this time to the reality of the so called Roosevelt luck.

THE LIBERTY BELL

Leaves Philadelphia July 7. Arrive at San Francisco 17.

The Southern Pacific Company has handled many shipments of extraordinary value since the last spike was driven in its transcontinental line in 1869, but not quite so valuable as the Liberty Bell, which it will bring into California and to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco next month. Consequently the most elaborate precautions are being taken to insure the safe transportation of the priceless relic.

The bell will be handled on a special train. It will be under guard every moment from the time it leaves Philadelphia until it is returned there. It will be carried on a special gondola freight car, equipped with all the safety appliances necessary to enable it to be moved in a passenger train. The gondola will occupy the same position as an observation car, at the rear of the train, that the residents of the cities and towns through which it passes may view the bell. There are six other cars—sleepers, diner, etc.—these to be occupied by the exposition dignitaries, Philadelphia officials and others making up the escort committee of sixty or seventy persons.

The bell will leave Philadelphia on July 7. Safety of transportation and the population of the country traversed by the railroads determined the routing. It will pass through Chicago and Kansas City, and thence be transported to Omaha, where it will be taken in charge by the Union Pacific. The latter road will carry it through Denver and Salt Lake City to Ogden where the Oregon Short Line will assume charge and take it to Boise. From Boise it will go to Portland; and after being on exhibition there six hours, the Southern Pacific becomes its guardian. This will be on July 15. On that day, the Southern Pacific will begin its transportation to San Francisco via the Shasta Route, the residents along which will be given an opportunity to view the historical reminder of the war of Independence. The bell will leave Portland at noon, July 15. It will reach Salem, Or., at 2 P. M. of the same day; be on exhibition until 2:30, and will then be moved to Eugene, Or., arriving there at 5 P. M. The people of Eugene will have 15 minutes in which to view it. Arriving at Roseburg, it will be on display the same length of time, arriving there at 8:15 P. M. It will pass through Medford about 2 A. M. July 16, arriving at San Francisco July 17.

The total mileage covered by the Liberty Bell's westward journey is 5,234. The average speed per hour will be 28 miles, the railroads handling the movement having decided that to haul it faster might endanger its safety. The bell already has one large crack in it. The itinerary for the return movement has not yet been decided upon.

Blooded Horse is Thief's Prize

C. E. Austin, a rancher of Antelope reported to the local police and to the sheriff's office Monday afternoon that someone had stolen a valuable Belgian horse from his pasture. Word was sent to the surrounding districts and every effort is being made to locate the thief. Austin is inclined to believe that the horse was taken by the same party that has been stealing cattle in Sams Valley during the past fortnight. —Sun.

SUNDAY'S BALL GAME

Home Team Defeats Tolo, Score 9 to 7. Will Play Medford To-morrow at Jacksonville.

The ball game on the local diamond Sunday afternoon was between the Tolo Farmers and the home team and resulted in the defeat of the Farmers by a score of 9 to 7, after a hard fought battle lasting a little over two hours.

The game was interesting notwithstanding the fact that a number of errors were made by players on either side. The visitors failed to score in the first inning while the home team made two runs again in the second. The Farmers got a loose egg and the locals piled up three more and it then looked like a walk-away for the local team, but in third inning the visitors scored one and in the sixth, by reason of a couple of bad plays by our boys, they made six runs, tying the score. In the seventh inning neither team scored but in the eighth the home team made two runs, thus making score seven to nine in favor of the home team and as the visitors failed to add any to their score in the ninth inning the final score was 7 to 9 in favor of Jacksonville.

Worden Ennis, who formerly played with the Jacksonville team, but who has been out of practice for several years, pitched the first six innings for the locals and showed that he had not forgotten the game. There were several good plays on each side and of course a few errors, as is usual, but taken as a whole it was a pretty good game.

Tomorrow, the local team will play on the home grounds, against a nine from Medford. An interesting game is predicted.

Forest Notes

News print paper has been made by the Forest Service laboratory from 24 different woods, and a number compare favorably with standard spruce pulp paper.

The Forest Service is cooperating with 64 railroads, mining companies, and cities in making tests of wooden ties, timbers, poles, piling, and paving blocks which have been given preservative treatments.

In 1895 there were 15 wood preserving plants operating in the United States; in 1914 the number had increased to 122, representing all types of plant.

The 1914 figures, based upon reports from 94 plants, show that the total number of cubic feet of material treated with preservatives was 169,582,639 cubic feet. This was an increase of 5,968,751 cubic feet over the total for 1913. Of this increase, 103,980 cubic feet was made up of piling, and 3,577,571 more cross ties were handled than during the previous year.

During 1914, nearly eighty million gallons of creosote were used by the preserving plants of the United States.
