We have three dairv farms in Tillamook County, Oregon, and will exchange one or all of them for farms in your county or will consider desirable city property at your county seat, up to 50% of the purchase price of each farm. Each farm is on a good road, close to Tillamook City. Each farm is supplied with good buildings, a fine dairy of cows, milking machine, silo, farming tools and dairy utensils. These farms are held at $30,000, $32,000 and $70,000, respectively. Sawmill will Resume After 2 Years' Shidow
Bandon, Ore., Feb. 11.—After being idle for nearly two years the Moore Lumber Company, operating the large saw mill on the Coquille river, will open its plant about March 15, according to an announcement made by George W. Moore, president of the company. The logging camps of the company will open this week. Unable to get logs, because of an injunction secured against the company by the Coach estate, owners of the timber they were cutting, the mill closed during the summer of 1914. The injunction was dissolved and an agreement made with the Coach interest last week. It is also reported that the Lyons-Johnson mill, Robert Dollar, trustee, is to open within the coming month. When in operation these two mills employ about 300 men.

Straightening Streams With Dynamite
The ancient Egyptians were noted for their crops because, as history states, they "sowed their seeds in the Nile." This does not mean that they actually cast the seed in the river. At certain seasons of the year the Nile overflows its banks, depositing on either shore a rich silt or earth that is highly conducive to bumper crops, and the wise ancient Egyptians, realizing this, profited thereby. Water is a necessity. The finest brooks up to the largest rivers play an important part in the scheme of things inasmuch as they are nature's way of both irrigation and drainage. But being formed according to nature's dictates their courses do not always fit with man's desires or needs. Rock ledges impede their progress. Overhanging stumps and trees retard

Wood Engraving.
It is still a mystery whether wood engraving came to Europe from the east or was rediscovered by some European artificer. There is a like uncertainty regarding the precise date of the first European woodcut. It is only known that European wood engraving was going on as early as the first quarter of the fifteenth century. It has been proved that a woodcut in the Paris library was printed in 1406. The very earliest wood engraving consisted of outlines and white spaces with smaller black spaces, but shading is rare. Woeful Lack. "Although Chuzson has had a car for almost six months, he still seems to think a pedestrian has some rights." "How do you account for that attitude?" "It's very peculiar. It certainly shows a woeful lack of self confidence."—Birmingham Age-Herald. Single and Double Flowers. The petals of a single flower fall sooner than do those of a double one for the reason that the inner petals are transformed more slowly and retain the power of adherence they need when performing their original function. The Greek Kalends. "Postponed to the Greek kalends" is a Roman phrase used when the Greeks had no calendar and therefore meant, as regards a debt, that it would never be paid. Misfortune. The fact that God has prohibited despair gives misfortune the right to hope all things and leaves hope free to dare all things.—Mme. Stretchne. Commonplace Greatness. Not a day passes over the earth but men and women of no note do great deeds, speak great words or suffer noble sorrows.—Charles Reade. Patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet.—Rousseau.

New Laugh
Smile. Don't think about it. Probably won't happen that way, anyway. And, if it does, 'twon't be as bad as you fear. There's the real trouble—being afraid. We take a little trouble about the size of a goat and look at it through the magnifying glass of fear until it looks as big as an elephant. Then we are afraid of our own creation. Thing to do is to squash it while it is still no more than a goat. We don't hate squirmy things because of what we know they will do to us, but because of what we fear they might. Our reason tells us they are harmless, but our fear contradicts. Men are just as bad. No need to tell a woman in what way. Smile. There's so much joy for the least of us. There's so little pain for the most of us. It seems funny to me that any of us can't smile all the time at the rest of us. Now laugh!—Los Angeles Times.

Historic Rose Tree.
The most venerable rose tree in existence is said to bloom against the ancient church of Hildesheim, in Germany. Notwithstanding the many parties which at different times have been in the ascendancy, they all seem to have respected and tended the rose tree, which, it is said, was planted by Charlemagne. The trunk is now almost as big as a man's body. There are five principal limbs trained against the church, the tree being protected by iron railings enclosing an area of about twenty-six square feet. The German soldiers in early ages tended the tree; Catholics and Protestants, in turn masters of the town, drained the ground; the soldiers of Turonne fastened up the branches with clamps, and those of Napoleon, a century and a half later, erected the railings.

For the Visitors.
In full view of the crowd in a very busy street two vendors of berries were busy with piles of thin wooden boxes, each scantily filled with immature fruit. Emptying box after box, the vendors deftly punched up one layer of the box bottom to a sharp angle pointed in the middle, propped it there with paper and then refilled the receptacle, taking great care that the finest and freshest looking berries should make a showy top covering. One of the spectators grew indignant. "How in the world," he demanded, "do you expect to sell your wares when you openly show that they are not what they seem to be?" "Aw, gwan!" said the vendor addressed. "This is New York, and there are more trains coming with more people."—Everybody's.

First Steam Press.
On Nov. 29, 1814, a newspaper for the first time was printed by steam. Although the application of steam power to printing machinery had been successfully experimented with some years previously, the hostility of the working printers rendered it unadvisable for the masters to introduce such a startling innovation into their printing houses. Toward the end of 1814, however, the growing circulation of the Times made a change of some kind necessary, and in the face of fierce opposition the second John Walter set up a steam printing press. So on the morning of Nov. 29 the leading article of the Times announced to its readers that they held in their hands that day a copy of the first newspaper to be printed by steam.—London Answers.

The Presidential contest also will soon be at hand. Already candidates for the nomination are in the field, and the campaign, owing to the extraordinary character of the times, will be of supreme interest. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-a-Week edition of the New York World. THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers.
