COPPER MINE IS SOLD LATE DORMANT SPRAY

$150,000 Paid for Queen of Bronze and New Owners Take Possession.

Grants Pass, Or., Feb. 29—The sale of the Queen of Bronze copper mine was confirmed yesterday, the purchase price being $150,000, the first payment of $50,000 having been made. The property belonged to the Tutts estate, of Denver, and the purchaser is John Hampshire, of Twoly Bros., and associates. This property is located at Takilma, 40 miles south of this city, and is said to be one of the richest copper properties on the Pacific coast. Ore has been hauled the past year from this mine in auto trucks and shipped from this city to the smelter. The new owners have taken possession of the property and a large crew will be put to work at once to further develop the property and get out ore for shipment.

Idaho's Famous Garden Spot

The richest agricultural section of Idaho lies in the valley of Boise River in the southwestern part of the state. Herein is located the great Boise Government irrigation project, embracing 243,000 acres of exceptionally fertile land.

With an expenditure of nearly $15,000,000 the Reclamation Service has constructed one of the greatest irrigation systems of the world, including the spectacular Arrowrock dam 350 ft. high. Hundreds of miles of canals have been laid out through the valley two enormous reservoirs control the flood discharge, and a very prosperous community of 2,000 farm families are now occupying the irrigated farms.

The State of Idaho owns approximately 14,000 acres of land under the system, which it has agreed to subdivide and sell at public auction. The State Land Commission at Boise is making a strong bid for settlers in an announcement recently issued of a public sale of nearly 500 farms on February 25. Under the terms of sale purchasers will have 40 years in which to pay, with interest at 6%. These farms include some of the choicest lands in the valley, located in the midst of a well settled agricultural community. Interurban trolley systems connect the farming districts with the numerous cities and towns, excellent schools have been established, and the pioneering stage is largely over.

Pathologist Warns Orchardists Against Scale Scabs, Etc.

This war on scale and scabs is certainly very untimely as it is forming the fruit buds about three weeks earlier than normal. However we can do nothing to remedy these conditions but must meet the situation in the best manner possible.

The time is rapidly approaching when it becomes necessary to apply the dormant spray. This delayed dormant spray is very important and should be generally applied. It is not only effective against scale, red spider eggs, pear leaf blister mite and partially against the leaf roller but is also important in the control of scab. Orchardists knowing that they have any of the pests enumerated should by no means eliminate this spray.

Where the aphids have been numerous the past season the addition of nicotine sulphate, one pint to 150 gallons of the spray solution will prove quite effective. In the few cases where thrips are supposed to be present it will partially control the young. As the addition of the nicotine sulphate entails added expense it is only recommended to use it under the conditions described. The safest course to pursue is to examine the trees for aphids on the young twigs of the last seasons growth. These eggs, which hatch about the same time that the buds are opening up.

It is unfortunate that in many orchards the ground is not sufficiently dried out for spraying at this time. In such cases this spray will necessarily have to be eliminated and a weaker solution applied, according to the stage of development of the buds.

Apply the spray according to the varietal development of the buds, that is, spray the earlier varieties first. The Howels should be sprayed first and in order follow the Anjou, Bartlett, Clairgeau, Bosc, Comice and Winter Nelis. There may be variations from this order due to peculiar location and soil conditions but in general it will be the rule. The exact point at which to apply the spray is just as the buds are breaking in the cluster. Care must be taken not to delay too long as there will be injury to the young fruit pedicels or stems. Where the acreage is too large to be properly accommodated by the number of spray rigs on hand it will be necessary to make allowance and start earlier, always keeping in mind that the spray must be on before the clusters are separated so far that

OUR OWN STATE

Some Recent Happenings in Various Parts of Oregon.

Hillsboro Sawmill to Start

Hillsboro, Or., Feb. 28—The Merrill Milling Company expects to start the Hillsboro sawmill this week with a force of about 18 or 20 hands. The present management has not operated the plant heretofore, as since purchasing it extensive repairs and improvements have been made, adding materially to its capacity and convenience. Logs are supplied by train from the Coast Range along the Tillamook road. Extensive contracts for ties have been accepted, and considerable ear building material will be produced.

Better Mail Service Demanded
Marshfield, Or., Feb. 28—Quick mail service between Portland and Coos Bay by railroad has been taken up by the postoffice officials and a demand is being made on the Southern Pacific to handle the mail as soon as travel opens in April. The company has taken no action, but it is understood it wants to wait until the road is permanently turned over from the construction to the operating department. The new service will bring mail here from Portland in one day. It takes three days by the Roseburg stage route.

Will Build North Bank Road
Hood River, Or., Feb. 29—Contracts for the construction of 10 1/2 miles of the North Bank highway in Skamania county will be let Saturday. The stretch of road involved is the second unit of work to be done under a bond issue voted by the Skamania county people last year. The first unit, between Stevenson and Carson, was begun last October and is about half completed. The road work to be done will be finished by the first of September.

Amity Postoffice Again Entered
Amity, Or., March 1—Burglars on Sunday night entered the local postoffice by prying open the rear door with tools taken from a nearby blacksmith shop, and blew open the safe door but they secured nothing for their trouble, as no money or stamps were left in the building. The last previous robbery of the postoffice was about a year ago, when some money was taken after the safe was blown open. The postoffice has been entered by burglars periodically for the past seven or eight years.

Plaman Cleared of Arson charge
Roseburg, Or., March 1—William Plaman, a sewing machine agent, was cleared yesterday of the charge of arson. He explained away all the state's evidence presented, and besides had a clear alibi for part of the charge. He has been in jail since the first of the year, while his family depended on charity.

Snow at Canyonville
Canyonville, Or., March 1—The fine weather changed yesterday afternoon and it has been raining or snowing most of the time since. Between here and Grants Pass the snow varies from one to eight inches in depth, but it has turned warmer and the snow is melting.

Currying Mail by Auto
Lebanon, Or., March 1—Three autos are now being used in the delivery of United States mail out of Lebanon. C. R. Loveall and John Stanard, carriers on star routes from here to Lacombe and Foster, respectively, and Myron Nichols, rural carrier, are using them.

Severe Storm at Roseburg
Roseburg, March 1—A severe storm struck here yesterday and raged all night. Snow fell in the mountains and hills, while cold rains fell in the lowlands. Cattlemen had 12 hour's warning.

Death Ends Suffrage Argument
Houston, Tex., Feb. 28—Two men argued on woman suffrage here. After the talk had gotten away from generalities and the qualifications of individuals were taken up, John A. Kierns was removed to a hospital with various knife wounds, from which he died. A charge of murder was preferred against W. R. Young.

MURDERED ON WAY TO CHURCH.

L. B. Akers and Wife Are Dead and M. D. Bousman Confesses.

Grants Pass, Or., Feb. 23—M. D. Bousman shot and killed L. B. Akers and wife yesterday morning, on a lonely mountain road near Wilderville, the result of an old feud. Bousman was taken into custody by the sheriff last evening, confessed the killing, in a detailed statement and is now in jail in this city.

The bodies of Akers and his wife were found eight hours later by James Beisinger, who works in a sawmill near the scene of the shooting, and he notified the officers who, when they arrived, about dark last night, found one of Bousman's canes near the scene. As he and his neighbors had been having trouble, the sheriff immediately went to Bousman's house, suspecting him. The sheriff asked him if he knew anything about the shooting and Bousman replied that he knew all about it and told the following story:

He said he had gone up the road to Akers' place with the intention of killing the couple when they drove out to church, but his heart failed him, declaring that he could not shoot a man who was not armed. He then started down the road and, when the Akers' rig caught up with him, Mrs. Akers called to him to get out of the road. He then turned around and shot both horses, killing them, shot Mrs. Akers through the breast, killing her instantly; shot Akers through the stomach, and again through the head, seven shots being fired in all, corresponding with seven shells found at the scene of the shooting.

The only witness to the shooting is Bousman, and the weapon used was a 25.35 Winchester carbine. Bousman has had trouble with the Akers family for the past three years over line fences and stock, and the Akers had complained to the county attorney to the effect that Bousman's hogs were running at large. On Saturday the county attorney notified Bousman to keep his hogs up. Bousman claims that at the last election his precinct had voted to allow hogs to run at large and that he was justified in the killing on that account.

The killing occurred about 9 o'clock Sunday morning, but the bodies were not found until 5 o'clock last evening. Bousman had taken a dose of poison shortly before the sheriff arrived and laid down on his bed to die when he was aroused by the sheriff. On the way to town he became sick, but the poison did not take further effect. He tells the story of the killing calmly and shows no remorse. He is about 63 years of age and has no family. Both the murdered people were about 15 years of age and they had no children. At the coroner's inquest this morning no new facts were brought out, the jury charging Bousman with the killing.

Bobby Brown Wins in Moose Race at Nome.

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 29—Three hundred dogs of the 1915 teams contest 1 yesterday in the "Big Moose" race to Solomon, 32 miles over the snow, each driver carrying a woman on his sleigh under the terms of the race. Bobby Brown won the race and a trophy cup; time 2 hours 51 minutes. William Webb was second, H. Corbin third. The weather was excellent, although the temperature was 15 below zero.

Logging Concern Ships 10 Carloads Every Day.

Chehalis, Wash., Feb. 28—The Hill Logging company of Bunker, about 8 miles southwest of Chehalis, is shipping an average of 10 carloads of logs a day to the mills on Grays Harbor. The logging concern intends to increase its force of workmen and its scope of operations within the next few weeks.
