WAR HAS BEEN DECLARED

Events of this week will occupy one of the most important pages in the history of the American nation, perhaps in the history of the world: events which may result in an entire re-arrangement of the map of the world as well as a complete change in the system of government in several countries.

Called together in extraordinary session by the president and listening to an address by the chief magistrate on the status of the German situation, an address which ranks as one of the ablest, most logical and convincing state papers in existence, our senators and representatives after considering all phases of the matter, passed by almost unanimous vote, a joint resolution declaring that by the acts of Germany a state of war exists between that country and the United States, and authorizing the president to use all the resources of our government to speedily bring it to a successful termination.

The resolution, a copy of which appears in another column received the following vote: Senate—for 82, against 6. House—for 373, against 50.

The war upon which we are entering is not one of conquest or for the acquisition of territory, but is one for the defense of our national rights; the rights of other weaker nations: the advancement of freedom and liberty and will be waged in the interests of humanity, not against the Germans as individuals but against that system of absolutism represented by the German government. Every loyal American will support our government to the full measure of his ability. The future of our Republic may depend upon the issue.

Cattle Herder Shot to Death

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 2—Lying in the snow with a bullet in his breast, Raymond Johnston, 17, a cattle herder, was found dead today in Dry Canyon, near here. A revolver, with one empty chamber, was found near the body. Police scout the theory of a suicide.

Bullied Off Track by Freight

Dick Thomson, a brother of Jess Thomson of Ashland, was struck by freight train and badly bruised last Saturday morning. The accident occurred in the vicinity of Ager. Thomson was walking on the railroad track and apparently did not hear a freight train which sneaked up on him from the rear and butted him off the track into the ditch. The train crew brought him to Ashland, where examination revealed him to be badly bruised but no bones broken. He is at his brother's place here.—Ashland Tidings.

Must Wear Flag Until War Ends

Kansas City, Mo., April 2—Joseph Glabansia, a tailor, will wear the flag on his coat continuously until peace is declared in Europe because he seized a flag and stepped on it. "I should fine you $500," Judge Coon told him, "but I will make it $25 if you will promise to wear the American flag on your coat until peace is declared."

Notice of Sheriff's Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON, IN AND FOR JACKSON COUNTY. Francis A. McCargar, Plaintiff, vs. Rogue River Farm Products Company, a corporation, Northern Bank & Trust Company, of Seattle, Washington, a corporation, and W. H. Walker, Defendant.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a writ of execution issued out of and under the seal of the above-entitled court in the above entitled cause, to me directed, and dated April 7, 1917, and which writ was issued upon request of plaintiff and in compliance with and upon a judgment, decree and order of sale rendered and entered in the above entitled court and cause on March 31, 1917, and duly docketed in Volume—at page—of Judgment Docket of above entitled court and wherein the plaintiff, Francis A. McCargar, recovered judgment against the defendant Rogue River Farm Products Company, a corporation, for the following sums, namely: $1,838.21, being the amount of principal and accrued interest due at the date of said decree upon the note and mortgage therein foreclosed; the further and additional sum of $21.22, being the amount of taxes expended by plaintiff upon the mortgaged premises pursuant to the terms of said mortgage; the further and additional sum of $160,000 adjudged to plaintiff as reasonable attorney's fees in said suit; and the further and additional sum of $37.50 taxed as costs and disbursements in said suit; with interest on said judgment, including the aforesaid several sums, at the rate of 8% per annum from the date of said judgment and decree, namely, from March 31, 1917; and by which decree the said above named defendants are and each of them is foreclosed of all right, title, estate, lien or interest in or to the hereinafter described premises, including all interest that said defendants above named, or any of them had therein on May 21, 1914, or which they, or any of them, have since acquired or now have therein, and by which decree the same is ordered to be sold for the satisfaction of the aforesaid judgment:

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of said judgment, decree, order of sale and execution, and in compliance with the commands of said writ, I will on Monday, the 7th day of MAY, 1917, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. of said day at the front door of the court house in Jacksonville, Jackson County, State of Oregon, offer for sale and sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash in hand, subject to redemption as by statute provided, the following described real property and all interest that the defendants above named or any of them, had therein on May 21, 1914, (the date of the mortgage foreclosed in said cause,) or that they have since acquired or now have therein, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said execution, judgment, decree and accruing costs, to-wit:

The Northwest quarter of Northwest quarter, and Lots Nos. ONE (1), TWO (2) and THREE (3) in Section Twenty-two (22), in Township Thirty-seven (37) South, Range ONE (1) West of the Willamette Meridian, containing 52½ acres, together with all tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, all being situated in Jackson County, State of Oregon.

DATED this 7th day of APRIL, A. D. 1917.

RALPH G. JENNINGS, Sheriff of Jackson County, Oregon, By Leslie W. Stansell, Deputy. Date of first publication April 7, 1917. Date of last publication May 5, 1917.

Story of a Dress Model

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Something—I don't know what—always caused me to doubt that my mother was my real mother. Perhaps it was an indistinct memory of other scenes, when I was a tiny girl, than my shabby home that first put the idea into my head.

The fancy that I was born a lady was enhanced when I became seventeen years of age by being dressed like one. My mother had by this time forced me to earn money, and I did so by being a model for the showing off of clothes at a department store. The first costume I put on was a stylish morning dress. When I stepped before a mirror I was astonished.

But it was not until I put on a ball dress, decked out with paste jewelry, that I realized that I had been born a gentlewoman. A member of the firm on seeing me in this costume asked me about my antecedents, and when I told him that I had been lowly born he said that he didn't believe it. "Some ancestor of yours," he said, "was a shining light in an upper circle."

Of course all these matters tended to confirm me in the belief that I had been taken from my proper surroundings, but there was no one to give me any information about myself except my mother, and I could not bring myself to ask any questions.

One day I was informed that the firm desired me to show an especially artistic creation in a full dress gown for the movies. I declined at first. I presume it was a repulsion against showing myself to the gaze of the crowds as a model, but I was offered so large an amount in payment that I consented. I was photographed in a garden amid a multitude of beautiful flowers.

My photographs had not been on exhibition long when one day while at my place of employment I was sent for, to go to the private office of the head of the firm. On reaching it I found beside my employer a young man apparently the same age as myself, and it seemed to me that he was myself dressed in men's clothes. At any rate his face was the very counterpart of mine. Taking from his pocket a photograph he showed it to my employer, who in turn passed it to me. It was the reproduction of a full length portrait of myself in full dress, though I did not remember to have ever worn that particular costume.

"What is this?" I asked, puzzled. "I have never been photographed in this costume."

"It is a photograph of a portrait of my mother when she was a girl. I verily believe that you are her daughter, and if you are her daughter you are my sister."

Then he began to question me as to my past life, but I could only tell him that I had lived with a woman who I did not believe was my mother and that she had forced me to earn my living, which I had done as a dress model. He told me that he had seen my picture on the screen and had been struck with my resemblance to the painting of his mother. He, too, had lived with a family with whom he had nothing in common. When he was fifteen years old he had run away from these people, but afterward they had found him and taken him to his present home, where he had been received by his grandfather and acknowledged as such. No explanation had been made to him of his having been placed with those who had brought him up except that his mother had married against her father's will.

The young man insisted upon my going home with him to his grandfather. I had on a becoming street costume and wore it to a handsome dwelling, where I was confronted by an aristocratic looking old gentleman who the moment he saw me showed an intense interest in me. He led me to the portrait the photograph of which I had seen and after looking from me to it and from it to me several times he took me in his arms and kissed me.

"Your mother," he said, "was the pride of my heart. I designed her for a marriage involving either great wealth or a title, or both. She married a struggling artist, and I cast her off. What became of her I did not know till your brother here was returned to me not long ago from the family with whom his mother had placed him. He did not know, or at least he did not tell me, that there was another child, a girl, who was placed elsewhere. These persons were undoubtedly paid for the keep of the brother and the sister, but I do not know by whom. We will try to confirm what I say, and if you are my daughter's child—and I have no doubt that you are—your home will be with me in the future."

My supposed mother gave an account of my coming to her which tallied with this. My mother had died when I was a baby, and my father had placed me with my foster mother, paying her for keeping me. He died just before I began to earn my own living, and his remittances ceased. At his death my brother's foster father found our grandfather and returned the boy to him.

We were all happy at the clearing up of the mystery, though our grandfather lived in continued regret at his treatment of his daughter. My brother and I believe that we are twins, though we have never been able to prove this. One thing in our peculiar experience is patent—the movies are an excellent means of communication in a time covered by newspaper persons.
