About a week a friend of ours turned up his jag and it dawned upon him that prohibition had ceased to be a joke.

But while the talk is of peace, the way to promote it is for the United States to press forward with preparations for compelling peace.

It thus appears that war is ever so much easier to start than to stop.

Meanwhile, no quaking pacifist is more anxious to see war end than a lot of good men who are going to fight for victory.

Posse Takes Up Trail

Salem, Or., Sept. 3.—(Special) A posse from the State Penitentiary headed by Warden Murphy, is out in hills near Sublimity, south of here, tonight on what is believed to be a hot trail of Jan William Hassing, Portland wife murderer, who escaped from the penitentiary about 10 days ago. A report from what is considered a reliable source informed the prison authorities that a man answering Hassing's description was seen between the hills and Sublimity early this evening.

Hassing bears two strongly marked scars, one in each cheek, where a bullet passed through his face, and if once seen well there would be little trouble in identifying him, prison officials state. If the posse fails to locate the man to night the guards and warden probably will continue to beat up the surrounding territory tomorrow.

The naval lieutenant, survivor of the Battle of Falkland Islands, who has rejoined the German high seas fleet after a dangerous journey probably feels quite safe.

Whenever the Germans settle down to a contemplation of the manifold blessings of a deadlock in the West, those horrid Canadians come along and disturb their dreams by taking some new key position.

The dark German secret—what is Germany fighting for.

There Are Nones.

During his visit to the United States General Joffre was hurried through subways, jerked into skyscrapers, flung from New York to Chicago on a fast train and in general taken care of with the breathless assiduity which characterizes American hospitality.

On the eve of his departure for Montreal he was asked by a reporter to state freely and frankly which one of our national characteristics had most impressed him during his stay.

"Well, since you put it that way," replied Joffre, "I have been chiefly impressed by your blunt outspokenness and, if I may venture to say so, your lack of respect for your superiors."

"Our superiors!" exclaimed the reporter in blank amazement. "But we haven't any!"

"And," remarked Joffre in telling the story, "after making acquaintance with their wonderful country and its still more wonderful inhabitants I have come to the conclusion that what that reporter said was about right."

The Mighty Amazon.

The Amazon, which flows through Brazil from west to east, is the mightiest river in the world. It rises in the Andes, and its course to the Atlantic is over 4,000 miles. It has more than 1,100 tributaries, the chief being the Madeira, which is 1,800 miles long, and the Rio Negro, 1,350 miles long. The extent of the waters of this majestic river is the largest in the world, over 30,000 miles of its surface being of a navigable nature. It drains nearly 3,000,000 square miles of territory. There are something like 1,200 different kinds of birds which are exclusive to the valleys of this wonderful river and thousands of varieties of animal life which are unknown in any other part of the world. The soil of the basin of the Amazon is so rich that for every bushel of maize planted it is estimated that 800 can be harvested.

Tone Quality in Music.

Tone quality is a great factor in music. Vibrations in their multiples and relations determine tone. Various instruments vary in tone quality just as does the human voice. A bell, once cast, remains the same in tone, somber or clear, to the end of its usefulness. A violin is more than a bell, and on fine violins the most subtle nuances of tone quality can be produced. The higher the harmonics, or overtones, the higher the multiples, and the more elaborate and delicate the combinations the more exquisite the tone quality of the instrument.

The human voice is greatest in tone quality, excelling the instrument, because the singer's harmonics are based not alone upon physical proportions, but also upon the heart and soul of the individual.—Exchange.

Coveted Feathers.

Mamo is the name of a beautiful bird of the Hawaiian Islands, now believed to be extinct, having been destroyed for the sake of its golden yellow feathers, used in former days to decorate the state robes of chiefs.

The coveted feathers of the mamo bird were a small tuft about an inch long beneath each wing. The royal cloak of the Hawaiian King Kamehameha I, made of these rare feathers, was four feet long and eleven and a half feet wide at the bottom. This cloak of mamo tufts is said to have been buried with one of the later Hawaiian kings. The plumage of the mamo was generally black, excepting the lower back and parts of the wings, which were yellow.

Tropical Rains.

Tropical rains are of relatively short duration by reason of the small number of cyclonic storms in the tropics, and this duration is fairly uniform throughout the year.

The heaviest general rainfalls in Porto Rico are associated with West Indian hurricanes. The historic hurricane of Aug. 8, 1899, precipitated rainfall equivalent to 1,113 tons per acre.

Crossed Eyes.

Squint is caused by an unequal action of the muscles of the eyeball. If the muscles which move the eyeball outward are shorter than those which move it inward, divergent squint results. If the internal muscles are the stronger the result is convergent squint.

Just Like the Boy.

"These innovations disturb me. I can't get used to 'em."
"You won't notice the difference. This girl can whistle." — Pittsburgh Post.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Remedies For Scurvy.
The juices of fruit—oranges, lemons, prunes—are well known remedies for scurvy, but it has been found that the white potato has proved just as useful. For young children a small portion of the potato is required—one tablespoonful of mashed potato to one pint of water and added to twenty-four's feeding of milk instead of the usual cereal. Care must be taken to pare the potato very thin. An average sized potato (balled) will provide the amount needed. The vitamins may be retained by adding the mashed potato to the water in which it was boiled. This is a very simple and easy cure and one which a child will willingly take without objecting.
