Champion Slow Workers. One of the things that Cebu boasts of is its fine wharf. They make a great deal of the fact that today the wharf can slip up to the wharf on the dry and get rid of its cargo before the customs officials have waded up, whereas it was only ten years ago that boats had to lie out in the harbor and have the cargo transhipped into lighters.

We slipped up to the wharf all right. It took us from 4 in the morning until 6 at night to unload half the cargo of a ship whose gross tonnage is 512. I have seen lighters used in several scores of ports, and I never saw such slow work as that.

But, then, I had never seen the Filipino workman at his task before. As a snap judgment, made after only two weeks in the Islands, I would say that a Japanese woman or a Chinese coolie could give a Filipino a month to rest up and feed up for a piece of work and then beat him so badly in the first hour that he would never catch up. Of course Cebu is in the tropics, but so is Singapore, and I'll back a Singapore Chinaman against a Cebu Filipino any day.—Christian World.

Beauty on the Stage.

Whereas Ethel Barrymore, Maxine Elliott and Lillian Russell succeeded in spite of their beauty, the third raters will not, although they may get a temporary position and popularity which will pass for success. But it never lasts more than a few years. Anybody in the profession can tell you of numerous instances of girls who have been given easy leading parts after incredibly little experience because of their good looks. As soon as they arrive at that point they stay there until their looks fade and their usefulness vanishes. They think their position is secure and that work is no longer necessary for them. Now, as a matter of fact, the history of the stage has shown that there is nothing the American public grows tired of so quickly as a pretty face. There must be something behind the face. A woman can no more become an actress without working and studying, cultivating her voice and learning to use it as a violinist does his instrument, acquiring the technique of her trade, than she can become a painter without going to her life classes and studying colors.—Jane Cowl in Everybody's Magazine.

Unexplored Areas in Canada.

A very common impression held even by Canadians is that there is little Canadian territory left to explore except on the Arctic Islands. But as far back as 1830 Dr. George Dawson had calculated that there were then about 1,000,000 square miles of unexplored territory in Canada, about 600,000 square miles in western Canada, the rest lying in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Charles Camsell of the geological survey of Canada recently revised Dr. Dawson's estimate, reaching for western Canada the figures of about 642,000 square miles, while the unexplored area of northern Quebec is represented by 250,000 square miles.

The total area of Canada is reckoned at 3,729,005 square miles, of which 520,800 square miles are embraced in the islands of the Arctic ocean. The unexplored area (Camsell figures) of 901,000 square miles represents almost 28 per cent of the total area of the country.—Exchange.

Ocean Cannibals.

Such fierce carnivorous fishes as exist in the depths of the ocean are unknown at the surface. There is a "black swallower" which devours other funny creatures ten times as big as itself, literally climbing over its victim, first with one jaw and then with the other. Another species is nearly all mouth, and having no power of locomotion, it lies buried in the soft ooze at the bottom, its head alone protruding, ready to engulf any prey that may wander into its cavernous jaws. There is a ferocious kind of shark resembling a huge eel. All of these monsters are black as ink. Some of them are perfectly blind, while others have enormous, goggling eyes. No ray of sunlight ever pierces the dark, unfathomable caves in which they dwell. Each species is gobbled by the species next bigger, for there is no vegetable life to feed on.

Liberia.

It is generally asserted that Liberia, the west African republic, has one of the hottest climates known on the face of the globe, and certainly there are few spots on the map which have a greater rainfall. There are two rainy seasons, one in June and July and the other in October and November, and the yearly downpour amounts to nearly thirteen feet of water.

The country is rather remarkable for its flora and fauna. There is one species of tree that grows to a height of 200 feet and twenty-two species of trees, shrubs and vines that produce rubber. Among the animals encountered in the wild districts are the pigmy hippopotamus, the bay thighed Diana monkey and the zebra antelope.

Mechanical Genius.

A celebrated engineer being examined at a trial, where both the judge and counsel tried in vain to browbeat him, made use of the expression in his evidence, "The creative power of a mechanic," on which the judge rather tartly asked him what he meant by "the creative power of a mechanic."

"Why, my lord," said the engineer, "I mean that power which enables a man to convert a horse's tail into a judge's wig!"
