THREE SONS ON THE TUSCANIA

San Francisco Woman Gave Country Three Soldiers--One Lost With Torpedoed Transport.

TWO SONS SENT TO FRENCH FRONT

Mrs. Louise Moore of 129 First avenue, San Francisco, knows the meaning of war. In the front window of her home a service flag shows three stars. Three of her sons answered the call to colors.

And when the Tuscania was torpedoed, with the loss of more than one hundred American lives, her eldest son, William Moore, made the great sacrifice for his country. On the rocky coast of Ireland he lies buried in the grave which enfolds others of his comrades in arms.

The other two sons of Mrs. Moore, who were also on the Tuscania, are listed among those saved. The joy over their safety has been tempered only by the grief which followed the word of William's passing.

"I told those boys I was sorry that there was occasion to go to war," said Mrs. Moore, smiling through the anguish that was her portion in the days following the Tuscania disaster. "But I told them also," she added with a triumphant smile, "that if our country was worth living in and enjoying when things were going along smoothly, it was certainly worth fighting for when it was in trouble."

That is the spirit of American motherhood in these days of trial and sacrifice. "Our country has not asked much of its young people in the way of sacrifice," said Mrs. Moore. "Things have been fairly easy for most of the boys and girls of this generation. Now it is their time to show how they have appreciated all that has been given to them."

Mrs. Moore has two other sons, one of draft age, and the other old enough to enlist but not old enough to be drafted.

"Now they're crazy to go," said the brave little mother whose service flag already has one haloed star.

"Do you know the last thing the three boys did before they left?" she asked with motherly pride. "They all bought Liberty Bonds, and said they would leave the rest of that work to us. Now we know what we can do."

Private William Moore and his brothers have left a message for the stay-at-homes in America to heed: "The rest of you buy Liberty Bonds—that can be your work."

Have you planned to buy your next one, now that the Third Liberty Loan is called for?

THREE MEALS COST $14.000

Feeding 12,500 troops at Camp Lewis, Seattle, three meals a day will cost the Government $14,000, and in the preparation of the meals 121 tons of food will be used. Money is needed to buy the food. That's why the Government will ask you soon to buy Liberty Bonds of the Third Liberty Loan.

MANUFACTURING OREGON'S NEED

Louis J. Simpson Favors Development of Our Home Industries.

PROFITS SHOULD REMAIN AT HOME

Raw Materials Should Be Transformed Into Finished Articles Where They Are Produced.

Oregon need never have fear about the future if its people will but make known its possibilities of giving to the world something better for less money than can other portions of the globe.

L. J. Simpson, an authority on community development, in a recent talk made before the people of Washington County, on the occasion of the opening of the Pacific Coast Starch Company's plant at Beaverton, showed how lack of proper exploitation has failed to give the public the proper appreciation of goods that are made right here at home.

For example: Miles and miles of streets in Boston, London, Paris and Berlin are paved with wooden blocks, and only a few years ago Boston took out more than 100 miles of Belgian block pavement and replaced it with wooden blocks.

Yet in cities of the Northwest there is today little or no wooden block pavement.

Recently the fact was brought out that a company, whose advertisements are seen in every national magazine and whose business in ready-made houses runs into millions, gets much of its lumber from our Oregon forests.

Mr. Simpson said: "There is no reason in the world why people outside of Oregon should make the greatest profit on the things which we produce and until the first and last profit on our goods stays within our boundaries we have not done ourselves and our state justice."

"It is these things which we must face and act upon now. They are matters that certainly will not improve with age."

"There are a thousand and one things made from the products of Oregon on which the manufacturing profit is reaped at places miles and miles away."

"When I speak of these things, I am not dealing in generalities. Some will naturally ask, 'Well, what is to be done?'"

"On that, I want to tell you of the situation at Coos Bay. That, incidentally, is a great community. It's great because every man there has a chance and because people there have come to realize that what is good for the community is also the best thing for them."

"In that comparatively small part of Oregon there are more representative manufacturing plants than in any other similarly populated part of Oregon, with the exception, of course, of Portland."

"Of course, some of the products of the region are still shipped away in crude form, but on the other hand there is much manufacturing in the Coos Bay cities and the profit stays there."

"For example, timber when it leaves Coos Bay is almost in its final form. No logs are shipped from there."

"The box factories are busy. Then, there are a dozen other plants which do the work right down to the last bit of finishing on novelty goods made from the myrtle and other fancy woods of the Coos Bay region."

Mr. Simpson encourages and is a believer in co-operative community development, of communities fostering new plants and industries. He commended the people of Washington County on their interest in the new starch plant.

"When the people of Oregon get into the habit of keeping their raw materials here until they are manufactured, then, and not till then, will the state be on a basis of permanent prosperity," he concluded.

FAITH IS NEEDED

Capital Should Be Invested in Industries to Develop Oregon.

Claiming that what Oregon needed was a little more faith on the part of the individual, L. J. Simpson recently pointed out how an effective, progressive state administration could help instill this feeling in private enterprise.

"Oregon today needs more of the faith that will cause men to invest their money in some enterprise which will develop an industry which should logically be Oregon's," said Mr. Simpson.

He is a great believer in "starting something" and believes if the average man knew how often he could get "over the top" with his ideas, there would be more successful ventures. If a man can but muster the courage to start anything that has basic merit, Simpson says it will be surprising how easy the rest of it is.
