BREMERTON READY TO HANDLE FLEET.

Five Battleships and Thirty Destroyers Expected to Come to Navy Yard.

Bremerton, Wash., March 31.—Indication that the navy department is considering the matter of establishing a large Pacific fleet on this coast, navy yard officials announced yesterday that an inquiry had been received from the bureau of supplies and accounts asking whether the yard could handle the supplies for five battleships and 30 destroyers for a period of six months, in addition to carrying for the needs of the regular Pacific fleet ships that base there.

Though no statement was made that it has been definitely determined to send such a force to this coast, the query, following reports from Washington of the intention by the department to divide the Atlantic fleet, is taken here to indicate that the matter of basing a considerable force at the Pacific Coast yards is under serious consideration. Unofficially it is stated here that the yard can easily handle the storage space needed for a squadron of the size indicated.

Two Scholarships Open.

Eugene, March 30.—Oregon will be entitled to two appointments for Rhodes scholarships this year, according to an announcement received today at the university. This is due to postponement in accepting scholars during the war. The Rhodes will provide for two scholars constantly at Oxford from each state in the union, the scholarships carrying with them the stipend of 300 pounds a year, from which tuition, fees and expenses are to be paid.

Selection this year will be made by a committee named for the purpose.

Cottage Grove Store Robbed.

Cottage Grove, Or., March 30.—Thieves, who overlooked many valuable pieces of jewelry in the same cases and made no attempt to break into the safe containing diamonds and other valuables, got away with more than $1000 worth of rings, fobs, watches and other valuables from the Madsen jewelry store Saturday night.

Four strangers seen examining the window of the store last night are suspected of the robbery. It is thought the robbers were amateurs. Entrance was gained by cutting a panel out of the back door and turning the key in the door.

J. S. Stewart Urges

Sherman County Bonds.

Wasco, Or., March 31.—The Wasco opera house was packed to the doors Saturday night to hear Representative James S. Stewart, of Fossil, speak in favor of Sherman county's $300,000 road bond issue to be voted upon next Saturday. At the close of the address the speaker was asked questions and answered them in a manner that seemed to clear up all doubts on the part of his questioners as to the advisability of the bond issue. It is predicted that the bonds will carry Mr. Stewart and others will speak at Kent tonight, at Moro tomorrow and at Grass Valley Wednesday.

Woman Smuggler Gets

Term of 4 1-2 Years.

Los Angeles, April 1.—Mrs. Helen Fauser yesterday was sentenced by Judge B. F. Bledsoe in the United States district court here to four and a half years in San Quentin penitentiary for engaging in a conspiracy to smuggle opium into California from Mexico, Eugene Strup, a co-conspirator, was sentenced to 18 months in the federal penitentiary at McNeil's Island, Washington. Mrs. Fauser was convicted and Strup pleaded guilty.

Negro Slayer is Jailed.

Boise, Idaho, March 30.—After shooting up a Mexican bunkhouse at Bliss, Idaho, and killing one of the occupants and then disarming a sheriff and his deputy, Andy Jones, negro, is in the Goosing county.

He was taken by L. C. Owens, who employs him in the kitchen of the hotel which he owns and operates here.

TELEGRAPH RATES ARE RAISED.

20 Per Cent Advance Tuesday Ordered by Burlison.

Washington, March 29.—Increase of 20 per cent in domestic telegraph rates, effective April 1, were announced today by Postmaster-General Burlison.

The increase was agreed upon at a meeting of the federal wire board and was made necessary, Mr. Burlison's announcement said, to meet the "increased cost of operation occasioned by wage increases now in effect, made during the past year."

Mr. Burlison added that the advance would be "barely sufficient" for this purpose.

The order affects both government and commercial messages, but it was announced that there would be no increase in special press rates for newspapers or in charges for special wires leased by press association and news papers.

Under the order, however, commercial and government leased wires will be charged for at an advance of 2 per cent over existing rates, whether such wires be furnished by a telegraph or a telephone system under government control.

Luma Attacks Trainer.

Douglas, Ariz., March 31.—John Great, an animal trainer with a carnival, was attacked and seriously injured by a mountain lion whose cage he had entered. The puma, formerly a pet of General John J. Pershing, sprang upon the man, knocking him down and was chewing his head. I was driven off by other attendants armed with iron bars and pistols loaded with blank cartridges. Great was rescued by Pete Loftus, a circus clown, who entered the cage, and was taken to a hospital.

They will have Some Time in Canada Note.

Toronto, March 29.—Advices from nearly all sections of Canada today indicated that the rural and urban districts would go through the summer with their clocks an hour apart as a result of the rejection by the dominion parliament of the measure to re-enact the daylight saving plan. The larger cities and industrial cities, it was reported, would adopt the advanced time schedule, while the rural and agricultural communities would retain standard time.

California Stands by Dry Amendment.

Sacramento, March 29.—The lower house of the California legislature today passed the bill to make effective by state agencies the national prohibition amendment by a vote of 47 to 28. The bill defines intoxicating beverages as those containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol. The senate passed the measure last week but it must be returned for concurrence in amendments inserted in the lower house.

BRANDING MARY

By IMES MACDONALD.

"Contrary Mary, don't be scarce,
Guard your garden wall.
Bare little Cupe, snooty fairy
Finally gets them all.
And in your breast he'll shaft his dart:
I swear this unto you—
And pierce your now rebellious heart,
For he's contrary, too."

Mary Rayburn knelt in her canoe and clung breathlessly to the low-hanging branches overhead that screened her as she watched the stinger lift his paddle and suddenly with one long sweeping stroke drive his own canoe into the hiding place beside hers.

"A—h," he smiled, "at last!"
Mary was startled and only stared.
"After all this time," he went on, "I've found you."

"Why—have you been looking for me?" she at last found her tongue.

"Don't you remember?" he chided her. "Don't you remember that day I saw you on the beach at Coronado? You wore a blue bathing suit and a yellow cap."

She shook her head. "I've never been there."

"I guess you're mistaken," she said as he hummed the air of his song smilingly, "and—and I think I'd better be going."

She half arose to disentangle a dead branch that had caught over the bow of her canoe—it tilted and with a little gasp of chilled surprise she found herself in the water. Almost instantly he was beside her. Then he took hold of her and held her high in his arms.

"You—you needn't hold me so long," she protested indignantly.
"Long," he chuckled. "I'm only letting you drain before I put you back in the canoe. Believe me, you're one wet woman."

And finally he hunched over and sat her down in her canoe.

"Here," he ordered. "Drag my canoe along behind and I'll tow us up around the bend where there's a sand bar we can land on."

He procured a bathing suit and a rain coat.

"Go back up there somewhere," he directed, "and put on these dry things. Then bring your things back here and spread them out on that bush. This sun'll dry 'em in a couple of hours."

She studied him silently for a moment and then silently took the things he offered and went back toward the thickly wooded shore. And a few moments later she returned with the raincoat wrapped about her and her hair tumbled down her back.

"Cold?" he asked.

She shook her head. He got out a coffee pot and a frying pan, talking in his droll way entirely unconscious of her shy reserve.

After they had eaten they sat there while Chalmers smoked. She studied him covertly at every opportunity as they chatted and talked, but she had persistently refused to give him any knowledge of herself other than the first name of Mary, which he had guessed. She watched him curiously as he took a charred stick and marked a mystic sign on the smooth skin of her arm.

"What is it?" she asked looking down on the circle he had made.

"I've put my brand on you," he smiled into her eyes. "I've a ranch in California, the Circle Bar—and that's my brand."

"Oh!" she murmured, rubbing the mark off with her hand, at the same time realizing regretfully that it was time for her to go. So she gathered up her clothes and went back into the trees to put them on.

"Sandy wrinkled, but nice and dry," she laughed, as she climbed into her canoe a few moments later.

"Am I going to see you again, Mary?" he asked earnestly.
"Perhaps I'll come this way again," she smiled, as she swept on down the river and out of sight.

That night Chalmers took the puncher's outfit that hung as a decoration on the wall of his shack and dressed himself for the costume ball that was to be held several miles below at the famous Wildermere Inn, one of the most interesting resorts in the Maine woods. When he arrived the ball was in full swing.

In the center of one group stood a delightful Spanish dancer who turned gayly to speak to some one passing and revealed to Chalmers a round bare shoulder, on which had been printed with a black eyebrow pencil the brand of the Circle Bar.

Instantly he stood before the group and swept his high-crowned hat, which bore the same insignia, a deep Spanish bow, as he took the dancer's hand.

"The brand is mine," he explained apologetically to the rest of the group, indicating the mark on her shoulder, "and anything that bears the brand of the Circle Bar is mine also." And he led her toward the veranda.

"I wondered if you'd be here tonight," she murmured when they reached the shadows.

"My brand is on you, Mary dear," he said, "and I'll never let you go."

"I—I don't want to go," she whispered.

And it is reported that somebody saw somebody that saw the Cow Puncher kissing the Spanish dancer, though of course it might not have been true.

He is building a stretch of road connecting his apple packing house with the county highway. A surfacing of concrete four inches thick will be applied to a base of loose builders.

Ranchers Need Workers.

The Dalles, April 2.—With the opening of spring work and the advent of the lambing season, a shortage of help is being experienced here and the local branch of the federal employment service is unable to supply the demand of local ranchers for farm hands.

A feature of the employment situation here has been the fact that, while the office was opened primarily for the purpose of securing employment for returning soldiers and sailors, practically none of these have been willing to accept ranch jobs.

Canada Rejects Daylight Saving

Ottawa, March 31.—Sir Henry Drayton, chief of the Dominion railway commission, has called upon the Canadian railroads to appear before the board Tuesday to show the reason why they have changed their train schedules one hour in conformity with the daylight saving law now in effect in the United States. The commission was not consulted with regard to the change in time. The Dominion government has rejected the daylight saving bill.

Five detectives guarded each train. Owing to the premium on silver in India, the bullion was obtained by melting silver dollars.
