"LITTLE DANNIE" GROWS UP.

As will be seen in another column of this paper, the "Post" passes under new management, commencing with this issue.

The new editor is a Jacksonville young man, having lived in this city for the past ten years, attending the local schools and doing the usual deviltries of all youngsters. But as it seems, "little Dannie" has finally grown up, and made an attempt to buck this world and try to knock out a living for himself.

The paper will continue as before, to endeavor to represent the people of Jacksonville and Jackson county; always working for the betterment of our little city, and always ready to help boost along any deserving enterprise.

The "Post" will be published by "D. W. Bagshaw and Son", and will be managed and edited by Daniel W. Bagshaw, Jr.

THE RETIRING EDITOR

The retiring editor of the "Post", who has published this paper for the past ten years, will retire entirely from the newspaper buisness and devote his time to the practice of law.

During the time he published this paper, Mr. Bagshaw became very closely associated with the people of Jacksonville, and with his brother editors of the West. It will be with regret that newspapermen will hear of the retirement from the newspaper game of D. W. Bagshaw.

In undertaking this little venture, the new editor wishes to ask the co-operation of every citizen of Jacksonville. To make the "Post" the best little country paper in Oregon, we must and will have the fullest co-operation of our readers.

The prices of our products will remain the same as at the present time and the price of the subscription will not change.

It is the idea of the new editor to make the "Post" a representative paper of the entire county, and we wish to ask that the readers send in any item of news that they may know of. Just 'phone 62 and there will always be someone ready to make a note of what you may have to say.

THE TELEPHONE SITUATION

Toll Charges Said to be an Outrage.

News of the proposed toll charge for use of the telephone line between this city and Medford created quite a stir in this city. The news of the raise in rates was taken calmly enough, but the idea of charging a toll on the Jacksonville-Medford line got under the skin of the patrons of the telephone company, as it rightly should.

As it appears at the present time the changes were approved by the Federal Administration, but the matter will be taken up thoroughly. It is not the first time that the company, through it's manager, has tried to stick the people of Jacksonville for a toll on the Medford line. But the other time it was forbidden by the State Commission

The local office reports that the court house phones are being attached to the Jacksonville office again, presumably for the purpose of collecting additional toll. When they were detached from this office, the company stated that it was done to reduce the cost of operating the local office. Looks that way now.

At a meeting of telephone users held at the City Hall Wednesday night it was decided to enjoin the company from putting the proposed rates into effect. Whether or not this can be done, remains to be seen. This action of the telephone company will undoubtedly lose many snbscribers in this city. A raise in rates may be just, but to try sticking us for a toll charge is beyond all bounds of justness.

"NOTHING DOING" IN COTTON

Kitchen Maids of Sultan of Morocco Entitled to Nether Garments of Expensive Stuff.

The sultan of Morocco was always an absolute monarch, and in that capacity the revenues of the country were his. There had never been any distinction between public funds and private funds—all belonged to the sultan. It was therefore no easy task to arrive at an agreement as to which were state and which private debts, so inextricably mixed had they been in the past. There was, for instance, a bill for some hundreds of yards of very expensive and very fine crimson cloth. Naturally the protectorate authorities scheduled this among the private debts. The sultan protested. The cloth, he said, had been purchased for governmental purposes—in fact for the trousers of the imperial kitchen maids; for there are several hundred slave-women employed in preparing the palace food. The protectorate government refused to be responsible for this debt. The ex-sultan drew up a historical treatise to prove that imperial kitchen maids were part and parcel of the state, and passed, like the palace itself, from sultan to sultan. The principle was accepted, but the debt was disallowed on the ground that these good ladies did not require such expensive stuff for their nether garments. A cotton material, they argued, would have equally well served the purpose. The sultan's reply was unanswerable and crushing. "In Europe," he said, "it may be the custom for the imperial kitchen maids to wear cotton trousers, but in Morocco we have more appreciation of the dignity of their position." There was nothing more to be said. The debt was paid—by the protectorate government.—From "The Liquidation of a Sultanate," by W. B. Harris, in "Asia" magazine.

BLUE LEDGE STORY DENIED.

Manager of Blue Ledge Mine Denies That Mine is to be Sold.

The editor has had a communication this week from the manager of the Blue Ledge mining property, denying the story that the mine was to be sold in the near future.

The material for the story was furnished the "Post" by a substantial business man of Jacksonville, together with his reasons for saying so.

While it is to be regretted if the story published was without a real foundation, still under the circumstances, we could hardly doubt the truthfulness of the story, coming from such a reliable source.

The manager stated that the story "May be true, but if so, is more than I know." He also expressed a desire to know who was starting those stories.

Foreclosure Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that, under and by virtue of an Execution and Order of Sale issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Jackson on the 28th day of July, 1919, in a certain cause in said Court pending wherein Ralph Williams is plaintiff and Richard M. Use for Rat Skins.

Exhibiting the cured skin of a brown rat, the veterinary inspector of Newcastle, Eng., has pronounced such skins superior to the linings found in some expensive coats. The difficulty in creating a ratskin industry appears to be the uncertain source of supply; but the demand that would be aroused would be an incentive for destroying the rats that now constitute so serious a plague. The bodies of the animals need not be wasted, as they form suitable food for pigs, poultry and dogs.

Didn't Know the Groom.

Tit for Tat.

Stevie and Robbie were cousins, and although very fond of each other, did not always agree. One day Robbie's mother entered the room where the little ones were playing, and was immediately appealed to by her son. "Mamma, mayn't Stevie tell me my faults?" "What do you want Stevie to tell your faults for?" asked Robbie's mother in astonishment. "So that I can tell Stevie his," was the unexpected reply.
