Wedding Bells.

The Assessor's and the Sheriff's families were recently drawn into a close alliance and the door between the two offices in the court house stands constantly open. Communication proceeds by wireless—loving glances and smiles—and all messages are readily understood.

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 10th, 1919, Glenn L. Terrill and Delpha Coleman were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Albert H. Gammons officiating. The Nuptial Vows were sealed with the use of a beautiful ring ceremony in the presence of the following:

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Terrill, parents of the Bride and Groom; Elva and Claire Coleman, sisters of the Bride; Mr. J. W. Adams, grandfather of the Bride; Dolton Terrill, brother of the Groom; Miss Linnie Hancam and Miss Anna French.

Following the ceremony a very delightful wedding dinner was served.

The young couple are at home in the Kubli cottage on Third street. A large circle of friends wish them health, happiness, prosperity and usefulness throughout their wedded life.

Art for Many.

"I do not want art for a few," said William Morris, "any more than education for a few, or freedom for a few"—and civic art is essentially public art. It has been likened to "a fire built upon the market place, where every one may light his torch; while private art is a fire built upon a hearthstone which will blaze and die out with the rise and fall of fortunes.

"Beauty in art is truth bathed in the impression, the emotion that is received from nature. Seek truth and exactitude, but with the envelope of sentiment which you felt at first, if you have been sincere in your emotion you will be able to pass it on to others."—Industrial Arts Magazine.

Consistency.

A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen and philosophers and divines. With consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do. He may as well concern himself with his shadow on the wall. Speak what you think today, in words as hard as cannon balls, and tomorrow speak what tomorrow thinks, in hard words again, though it contradict everything you said today. Ah, then, exclaim the aged ladies, you will be sure to be misunderstood. To be great is to be misunderstood.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

THE EDITORS VISIT CRATER LAKE.

Members of National Editorial Association Make Trip to Southern Oregon's Wonder.

About 250 members of the National Editorial Association arrived in Medford Monday morning on a special train from the north; were immediately taken to restaurants for breakfasts, and then started for Crater Lake, waiting automobiles being provided by the Commercial club.

The trip is reported to have been a fine one, the roads being in good shape except for a twelve mile stretch at Prospect. The party was divided up, some making the trip by the usual route and the rest by the Dead Indian trail.

Addresses of welcome were made by firelight at the Lake and responded to.

On the return to the valley the editors were assembled at Ashland Lithia Park, where the ladies of Ashland had prepared a gorgeous banquet. Which southern Oregon ladies know how to do.

Some of the party afterwards were taken on trips through the valley and then boarded the waiting train, which was to take them to the Ranier National Park.

FOLLOWED PATHS OF PEACE

Aborigines of Texas Unlike the Fierce Tribes of Other Sections of the Country.

Stone Implements found in ancient workshops in Texas, antedating French, Spanish or American settlers, prove that the original settlers of this state were not like the fierce tribes encountered in modern times by the white settlers.

Little is known about the aboriginal population of Texas, which lies between the Pueblo and mound builders' area, but Dr. J. Walter Fawkes, chief of the American bureau of ethnology, aided by Professor Pease of the University of Texas, have located some long-forgotten village sites. Their investigations lead to the belief that the original people of the middle part of the state were hunters, while those of the eastern part near the timber belt, were followers of agricultural pursuits and were skilled in the manufacture of pottery. They resembled the mound builders. The western part of the state was a more elevated and less arid plateau. Here the people resembled the Pueblos of New Mexico. Some of the tribes are reported to have been cannibals. In the opening of the eighteenth century Apaches, Comanches and other savage tribes roamed over Texas, following the buffalo, or raiding across it into Mexico. There seems to have been constant hostility with these Indians, in which many smaller tribes were exterminated.

Remarkable Chimpanzee Dies.

A few weeks ago there died a chimpanzee who had spent the eight years of his life defying all rules laid down for the well being of chimpanzees. His name was Antony, and he was the only one of his tribe of monkeys who has ever managed to stand an English climate unmitigated by artificial heat. He came from the Congo in 1911, when he was very young and small. At that time he weighed 14 pounds, by last summer he was just six times as heavy. During the whole period of his civilized life he was kept in a brick building facing southwest and unheated, and he slept in straw without blankets. Chocolates and sweets—poison to ordinary chimpanzees—were the special treats of Antony's dietary, and he had a less comprehensible fancy for beans.—Manchester Guardian.

The "Amen Corner."

The phrase "amen corner" is said to have originated in London, where, at the end of Paternoster row, the monks at one time finished their recitation of the "Pater Noster" as they went in procession on Corpus Christi day to St. Paul's cathedral. They began in Paternoster row with the Lord's prayer in Latin, continuing it to the end of the street, and then said "amen" at the corner of the row. As used in this country the phrase described the corner of a church where the elderly members sit and pronounce the word "amen" at intervals.

Fisherman's Mascot.

A mascot to which deep-sea fishermen attach great importance is a tiny flat stone or bone found in the ear of plaice and other fish. The wearer of one of these stones is supposed to be immune to the danger of drowning. It is easy to find these stones in the ears of fish, although they are no bigger than a split lentil. Anybody who cares to look for one and to examine it will see on its surface light and dark rings similar to those found on a larger scale in tree trunks. The number of rings tells the age of the fish, as a new ring appears each year.

Rapidity of Wireless.

It takes but one-twentieth of a second for a wireless signal to pass from Washington to San Francisco.

Summons.
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON, FOR JACKSON COUNTY.

Jane Rhodes, Plaintiff, vs
A. R. Rhodes, Defendant.
To A. R. Rhodes, Defendant:
IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint of plaintiff filed against you in the above entitled Court and cause on or before the 27th day of September, A. D., 1919, the said date being the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons; or to appear and answer plaintiff's complaint filed against you in the above entitled Court and cause within six weeks from the date of the service of this summons upon you, if said such personal service is had.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer for want thereof, plaintiff will take judgment and decree against you as prayed for in said complaint now on file in this Court and cause and as follows:—

That the bonds of matrimony now existing between this plaintiff, Jane Rhodes, and defendant, A. R. Rhodes, be dissolved and decree awarding to the plaintiff herein an undivided one-third interest in and to the North half of Lot Two and all of Lot Three and Lot Four of Block Nine of the (Old Town) City of Medford, Oregon, and for such other relief as to the Court may seem equitable.

Service of said Summons by publication was ordered by the Hon. F. M. Calkins, Judge of Circuit Court, State of Oregon for Jackson County, and the date of said order is August 15, 1919, and the first publication of this summons is August 16th, 1919.

FORD'S WILL GO

"HAYWIRE."
Ulrich's Delivery Truck Capsizes.

Friday morning when Lewis Thompson was making the usual morning delivery for Ulrich's store, the Ford delivery truck he was driving took a notion to go "hay-wire," and no sooner thought than done.

Lewis was turning around in the street and run into some sand. When he tried to straighten up his wheels, the steering apparatus had evidently passed the center and instead of turning in the direction desired, they went the other way.

The car turned over, with the wheels sticking straight up, pinning Lewis underneath. The seat and windshield protected him, but made it impossible to get up.

A crowd soon formed and lifted the car over on the wheels, and considerable surprise was manifested when Lewis got up and walked off.

The steering wheel was cracked, the top bent and the top of the windshield bent; that being the extent of the injury to the car. It was driven back to the store, loaded with a fresh supply of groceries, and away she went, just as though turning over was an everyday occurrence.
