Jacksonville, as the oldest town in Southern Oregon, has more to offer tourists than any city in the valley—and is making less effort to attract them. Practically every town in this section of the state, with the exception of Jacksonville, has built and equipped auto parks and are untiring in efforts to make their localities attractive to strangers. Many touring parties are in search of future homes and it is to be expected that these people will cast their lot with a town which shows itself to be progressive and up-to-date. There are a number of ideal locations for an auto camping ground in this city—all that is necessary is to install water and a few camp cooking facilities and let the traveling public know that Jacksonville is prepared to welcome and entertain strangers.

The 48'ers, Non-Partizan Leaguers, Single Taxers, World War Vets., etcetera, etc., in convention at Chicago overlooked a bet in not placing Willie Randolph Hearst's name at the head of their ticket when Senator La Follette refused to have greatness thrust upon him.

The Medford fire department has been called out several times this season to extinguish grass fires. Are we prepared to meet such an emergency?
