WHAT WE NEED.

Because of lack of places of public entertainment one California touring party was compelled to use a section of Fourth street as a picnic ground the middle of the week. This is proof that an auto park in Jacksonville is an urgent necessity. Had the blaze not been discovered and extinguished before gaining headway the W. R. Sparks residence, which caught fire Sunday morning, would now be in ashes. Conclusive proof that a good volunteer fire department is needed to deal with such emergencies. A good hotel, equipped to entertain tourists and the public is needed. But first and foremost is needed the cooperation of every Jacksonville resident in a determined effort to better local conditions. One man cannot build up a town—nor can 50 per cent of the population if the other 50 per cent oppose their efforts—but a strong pull by all the people, all the time, will surely bring results. Factional feeling has proven the bane of many a town; let us banish it here. Nothing but a proper civic pride, the famous "Seattle Spirit," placed that city in the proud position she occupies today—Queen City of the Northwest. A little of the same spirit will make Jacksonville what Nature intended it to be—the most beautiful home city in Southern Oregon. The one way to accomplish this is to pull all together, patronize home industries, spend every cent you can with local merchants, be energetic in efforts to secure needed public improvements, beautify your homes and develop the spirit so aptly expressed in one of the best "booster" songs ever written:

"Real towns are not made by men afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead;
If everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.
And if while you make your personal stake
Your neighbor can make one, too,
Your town will be what you want it to be,
For it isn't your town—it's you!"

Prospects for 1920.

It is hard to foresee what improvement can be expected in 1920 but the quantity of copper sold in the early part of 1920 indicates that the year will be better than 1919. Any improvement, however, will be temporary and no stability or security can be found until existing troubles are settled and industry and trade become more stable. The prosperity of the copper industry is peculiarly dependent upon the establishment of stability in other industries, and before the industry can receive any great stimulus the condition of labor and of trade generally, not only in America but in Europe must be greatly improved. When that time comes the industry will undoubtedly be as prosperous as ever.
