

SMILES

"Smile--and the World Smiles With You; Weep and You Weep Alone."

"For goodness sake don't quarrel with me in the street, Martha. What have we a home for?"

Women are optimists—they always believe their daughters will marry better men than they did.

Superintendent: "It is our custom to let a prisoner work at the same trade in here that he did outside. Now what is your trade?"

Prisoner: "Please, sir, I was a traveling salesman."—Ex.

An Irishman was seated in a train beside a pompous individual who was accompanied by a dog.

"Foine dog ye have," said the Irishman. "Phwat kind is it?"

"A cross between an Irishman and an ape," the man replied.

"Shure an' it's related to both of us," the Irishman rejoined.

When an Irish barrister was pleading one day a donkey brayed loudly outside the building.

The judge said, "One at a time, if you please."

After counsel had resumed his seat and the judge was summing up, the same interruption occurred.

"I beg your lordship's pardon. I am anxious not to lose a word of what you say, but there is such an echo in the court."—The Christian Home.

Traffic Cop: "Hey, you! Didn't you hear me yelling for you to stop?"

Auto Fiend: "Oh! Was that you yelling? I thought that was just somebody I had run over."

The old lady in the confectionery store was growing impatient at the lack of service. Finally she rapped sharply on the counter. "Here, young lady," she called, "who waits on the nuts?"

Patrick Callahan was discovered standing before Hennessey's drug store which displayed a large sign: "Nut Sundae."

Pat gazed at the sign a long time and then said to Hennessey, who had come to the door:

"Ash Wednesday, Shrove Tuesday, Good Friday—say, this is a new wan on me!"

The tramp knocked at the farmhouse door and asked for the farmer. To that worthy he presently recited a tale of woe, and asked for a job.

"Yes, you may have a job," said the farmer. "You may gather eggs for me if you are certain that you won't steal any."

The tramp choked with gratitude and emotion.

"Sir," he said, with eyes brimful of unshed tears, "you could trust me with any thing on earth. For twenty years I was manager of a bath-house, and I never took a single bath!"
