

WAR EXPERIENCE OF LOCAL WOMAN

fight. One of our gallant captains who looked upon the men of his company as his children, and cared for them accordingly, had them lined up every evening and administered to each man with his own hands so many tablets of quinine; "salvation balls" the men called them. This company had the best record for health of any in the command.

With the close of the rainy season in October and the coming of cooler nights an improvement in the situation was apparent. Some generous-hearted philanthropist at home sent a ship loaded with ice for the use of 'the troops at Santiago. No words of mine can express the comfort this brought to the fever-stricken camp, for day and night our very souls had cried out for just one drink of cold water, even our dreams were filled with the terrible thirst.

With the coming of the winter months preparations were begun to remove the bodies of those who had died in Cuba. I used to sit in the door of my tent and watch a transport swinging slowly at the pier below our camp. They were cording up on the deck long boxes of yellow pine, and day after day the work went on until the decks were piled high with long rows, box on box, in every one the body of a soldier who had died that Cuba might be free. They were sending another army home, but not with tramp of feet and fluttering banners and roll of drums would it return, but slowly, silently, sadly, with drooping flags and muffled drums—the grand army of the dead.

Now spring was at hand, and still the fever did its ghastly work, and when an order came for the regiment to move to Guantuaamo, sixty miles east of Santiago, the relief it brought was good to see. Any change from the camp, where all suffered more or less, was gladly welcomed. At Guantanamo the men had barracks built of wood, an improvement on tent life in any climate, but especially so in the tropics. Here I had a house to live in. After eight months of tent life it was a pleasure. This house had been the home of a Spanish officer at the beginning of the war, and in it we found five coal-black cats, which my Barbadoes maid declared were the ghosts of Spaniards left to guard the place.

A few months at Guantanamo and then came tidings that filled our hearts with joy. We were going home—back to our beloved America; and when our joyful eyes beheld the shores of our home-land, my only regret was for the comrades we had buried under the drooping palms on the hills of Santiago.

I have to live with myself and so I want to be fit for myself to know. I want to be able as days go by Always to look myself straight in the eye.

I don't want to stand with the setting sun, And hate myself for the things I've done.
