

of four of "the noble army of martyrs" sane superstition of witchcraft. Another who died for their faith—Patrick Hamilton, Henry Forrester, George Wishart the monument, sacrificed to the mercy and Walter Mill—who were burnt at less ignorance of their persecutors, and St. Andrews between the years 1528 and as truly martyrs as the persecuted Covenanters, with this important difference, 1563. Just below this monument an irregular hill runs along the shore and that the Covenanters had the satisfaction of dying for a good and avowed cause, while these wretched beings were and projects into the sea so as to form a little bay. These bear the significant names of "Witches' hill and lake," and cruelly murdered without the shadow of here were enacted those horrible, incredible atrocities consequent upon the in- a sufficient reason, and by virtue of laws which left them no hope of mercy.

C. L. HENDERSON.

FAME.

When one has climbed the ladder, steep, that leadeth up to fame,
 And, that he may ne'er return again, has pushed aside the same,
 Does he e'er remember what it cost to reach
 so high a place?
 Or does success, so perfect, all those bitter days
 efface?

If he would but look backward once, to the toilers on the way,
 With their sore, discouraged hearts, aching,
 breaking, every day,
 He would surely stretch a kindly hand to those
 yet left behind,
 To help them up that weary way, that they might knowledge find.

ELLA HIGGINSON.