

A title often sells a book as easily as it buys an interest.—Puck.

The dogwood may bark, but it never bites.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

An editor calls himself we, because he thinks he's two. He's beside himself, you see.—Plunder.

"A moral," says the Commercial Advertiser, "goes with this witticism." That's nice. Now give us the witticism.—Judge.

It is predicted that Gen. B. F. Butler's forthcoming book will "make a stir" in political circles. Does this mean that it will be accompanied with a spoon?—Norristown Herald.

A HEART WANTED.

"Give you my word," a lover said,
 "You make my pulses leap!"
 "Oh!" said the maid, "you're very kind;
 But I prefer, if you don't mind,
 That you would give what you don't find
 So very hard to keep."—Lippincott's.

The devil don't care two straws for your profession. All he is afraid of is your practice.—The Ram's Horn.

FOR SIX CENTS.

We are pleased to announce that we have made remarkably low clubbing rates with the St. Louis Magazine, the recognized leading low-priced American magazine. The magazine is beautifully illustrated, and is a high-grade literary, historical and humorous monthly of fifty pages. Terms, only $1.50 a year; specimen copy, six cents, sent to any one. Address St. Louis Magazine, 901 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo. We will send the St. Louis Magazine and Waver Swans one year for only $4.75. Address Waver Swans, Portland, Oregon.

Notwithstanding their important interests at Astoria, the Oregon Land Company give evidence of absolute confidence in the future of the sound country by extensive investments at Port Angeles, which, in their estimation, is destined to become the gateway of the Alaska trade. The present congress will make it a port of entry, and lying as it does, forty miles nearer the ocean and on the straits of Fuca directly opposite Victoria, it possesses special attractions as the American terminus of a transcontinental railroad line, which the Union Pacific people seem disposed to take advantage of, having made large investments in and about Port Angeles. Supplementing the features that commend Port Angeles from a business standpoint it enjoys a delightful climate and picturesque location that will exert an influence in the up-building of an important city.
