City of Ellensburg,

WASHINGTON.

Ellensburg, the county seat of Kittitas county, is a town that takes its growth every four years ago. The population is about 5,000, half of whom came the last year. Its resources are, first, agricultural, second, stock, the tributary ranges now feeding 150,000 head. Its resources well developed are gold, silver, copper, lime, marble, but the greatest is iron in school quantities, all kinds, ore averaging from 25 to 30 per cent.

Kittitas county is the geographical center of Washington. The valley is the center of the county, the town the center of the valley. There are abundant resources to support a large town. The universal belief is that the population will equal 15,000 in a few years. Property has doubled in value generally, and investments made now will bring four-fold returns. (17 20 12)
