LAN Des—the Room & EXP.

AT LAST.

MRS. CORWIGGER—Did you ever find a man under the bed?

MRS. MERRITT—Yes, the night we thought there were burglars in the house. I found my husband there.—Life.

FREE COINAGE HIS FORTE.

"On this financial question are you in favor of the free coinage of silver?" asked a passenger on the Erie road, of his neighbor.

"In favor of it! Why, sir, I've done seven years twice and five years once for it!"—Munsey's Weekly.

ITS OWN REWARD.

DEACON'S WIFE—What did that little boy want, John?

DEACON—He returned me my pocket-book which I lost.

DEACON'S WIFE—And did you reward him for his honesty?

DEACON—No, but I strove to impress upon his mind that virtue is its own reward.—Boston Courier.

LUCK IN HORSESHOES.

"I believe that there is luck in horseshoes."

"Nonsense!"

"It's not nonsense. A friend of mine, whose wife is one of those loud talking, woman's rights females, nailed a horseshoe to the wood shed, and next day she eloped with the hired man, and now her husband is enjoying the first holiday he has had in ten years.—Texas Siftings."

The production of lymph doesn't appear to be equal to the consumption.—Boston Herald.

HAD HIS REASON.

YOUNG MR. DEEDROKE—I want to marry your daughter.

OLD MAN SURPLUS—What for?

DEEDROKE—Well, I don't know exactly but I hope it's for not less than a hundred thousand.—Boston Courier.

REASONABLE.

"You are discontented with the wages I pay you, and yet at Mrs. Brown's you didn't have any more."

"That's so, and I did all the work there too. But you see you want me to love all your children and I must have extra pay for that."—Fliegende Blaetter.

"I despise a hypocrite," says Boggs.

"So do I," says Cloggs. "Now take Knoggs, for example; he's the biggest hypocrite on earth. I despise that man."

"But you appear to be his best friend."

"Oh yes; I try to appear friendly toward him. It pays better in the end."—Brooklyn Life.

"I have been occasionally troubled with Coughs, and in each case have used Browns Bronchial Troches, which have never failed, and I must say they are second to none in the world."—Felix A. May, Cashier, St. Paul, Minn.
