

Annie laughed saucily.

"I saw that John was getting awfully jealous," she said, with a sudden change to dignified gravity, "and I resolved to make him see how silly he was—or refuse to marry him altogether. Do you think your lesson is final?" she added, turning to John.

The honest fellow forgot his cough and extended his two hands cordially. The quartette clambered down the rugged hillside to the overhanging rocks, and Annie spread the contents of her lunch basket on the last year's ferns. The chipmunk chirruped in impatient expectancy, waiting for his share of crumbs; and when the pheasant swooped down upon the scene intending to rob the little creature as before, John Landes gave her a whole biscuit. The birds twittered overhead, the light wind stirred the currant blossoms, and the slanting sunshine threw deep purple shadows over the Cornell road.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

The long fight of the New York woman suffragists to secure a compulsory law providing for police matrons in cities has at last ended in their victory, the bill which recently passed the legislature having now received the governor's signature.

Mrs. Senator Carey says of the women in Washington, D. C., that she finds a great interest among them with regard to woman suffrage, and that they often express envy of the privileges enjoyed by the women of Wyoming.

At a meeting called by the Woman's National Press Association, at Willard's hotel, Washington, D. C., February 24, for the Federation of Women's Press Clubs, the following committee on organization and construction was appointed by the respective clubs represented at the meeting, viz.: Anna L. Diggs, Kansas Association; Mrs. E. M. Merrill, New England Association; Mary Allen West, Illinois Association; Belva A. Lockwood, Woman's National Press Association; Mrs. M. M. Merrill, New York Association; Rosetta L. Gilchrist, Ohio Association; Martha D. Field, New Orleans Association; and Emeline B. Wells, Utah Association.

Chancellor Vincent has invited Zerelda G. Wallace to address the Chautauqua Assembly on woman suffrage.

Mrs. Myra Peterson, of Highlands, Colorado, is a successful business woman. She deals in butter, eggs and poultry, which she buys in Kansas and sells in Denver and Highlands. During the year 1890 she paid freight bills to the Union Pacific railway of over $2,800. Her sales aggregated $17,977-35. Mrs. Peterson is a native of Vermont, and several years ago was the mail carrier from Lincoln to Coursen's Grove, Kansas. At that time she was the only woman mail contractor in the United States.

Miss Cicely Philipps, daughter of the Rev. Sir James Philipps, Bart., vicar of Warminster, Wilts, has been appointed secretary to the Central National Society for Woman Suffrage, London. Miss Philipps is at present engaged in teaching at the Oxford high school.

Harvard college was the first in America to establish an affiliated college for women, in 1878, followed by Evelyn college, Princeton, N. J., and Barnard. An affiliated college is one which exists for the purpose of extending its advantages to women through a special department, and is practically opposed to co-education. Harvard gives a certificate for diploma, Evelyn college gives a diploma of a lower degree than Princeton college, and Barnard a regular diploma, exactly like that given to men by Columbia, to which it is attached.

The following named officers of the National Council of Women have been chosen to represent that body for the next three years: President, May Wright Sewall, Indiana, president of the Indianapolis Propylæum and of the Contemporary Club of Indianapolis; vice president, Ella Dietz Clymer, New York, president of Sorosis; corresponding secretary, Rachel Foster Avery, Pennsylvania, recording secretary of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; recording secretary, Isabella Charles Davis, New York, recording secretary of the King's Daughters; treasurer, Lillian M. N. Davis, assistant secretary of the W. C. T. U.

"The air of these last days is electric with delightful tidings," said Miss Willard in her remarkable address before the woman's National Council. "In New York City such leaders as Mary Putnam Jacobi and Mrs. Agnew have rallied around Dr. Emma Kempin, the learned lawyer from Lausanne, and are helping to make it easier than ever before for women to enter the learned profession that has been most thickly hedged away from them. In Baltimore

Miss Mary Garrett, the most progressive woman of wealth that our country has produced, leads the movement that will yet open Johns Hopkins university to us, and has already mortgaged its medical college to the admission of women. In the recent national convention of public school teachers women were made vice presidents for the first time and given an equal voice in all proceedings, while the international Sunday school convention, that meets but once in three years, made a similar advance; and the Christian Endeavor Society, that has enrolled in the last ten years over 750,000 men and women, places the sexes side by side in all its purposes and plans. in its programme participated, ladies representing alumni of Mount Holyoke college—no longer a 'female seminary' be it thankfully observed—also Vassar and Wellesley; a tableau that, in spite of inherent college conservatism, could not have been furnished for our rejoicing eyes had not the disenfranchisement of women become a respectable and already a well-nigh triumphant reform."—Woman's Journal.

ENTRANCE TO RIVERVIEW CEMETERY.

Riverview cemetery, to the entrance of which we give space this week, is one of the most commanding and gracefully beautiful homes for the dead to be found in the United States. It is as though nature, in loving anticipation of the marvelous growth of Portland, had planned it, in the day when the earth was young, for the special purpose to which it is now dedicated. To the right of the entrance, as shown in the illustration, is a handsome and substantial lodge, surrounded on all sides with shrubbery and flowers. The ground, which is level at the entrance, rises abruptly on the left, flanked by banks of flowers and topped by graceful trees, both evergreen and deciduous. The alternately undulating, steep and level grounds, the well kept drives and handsome monuments which grace the city of the dead are all in harmony with the picturesque beauty of the entrance, which invites the stranger to a ramble within its gates, and offers solace to many a bereaved mourner who has buried from human sight the mortal remains of loved ones who have paid nature's final debt and entered the realms of the unknown.
