Sunday in the Park with George

Georges Seurat's famous painting comes to life in this Pulitzer Prize-winning play that takes you from Paris in the 1880s to America a century later. Brilliant songs by Stephen Sondheim, rich period costumes and guest Equity actors make this production by Portland Center for the Performing Arts and Portland Civic Theater's SRO picture perfect.

Smokey Robinson

The master of Motown, Smokey Robinson's unforgettable tunes range from Sixties standards like "The Track of My Tears," to his current hit "Just to See Her." Recently inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame, Robinson is a living legend who has helped shape the face of pop music.

The Flying Karamazov Brothers in "Juggle and Hyde"

Clubs, knives, torches and laughter fly through the air when the Flying K's take the stage. Bring the whole family for an unforgettable evening of incredible juggling and outrageous puns.

Ma Rainey's Black Bottom

Storefront Theatre reprises this salty musical drama about racism in the 1920s. Oregonian theater critic Bob Hicks calls it "a show worth stomping and shouting about."

This One Thing I Do

Filled with love, humor, courage and devotion, this New Rose Theatre production brings back Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton to comment on the 1850s women's movement they led.

West Coast Chamber Orchestra

Music director Niel DePonte leads 30 of Portland's finest classical musicians in a repertoire that appeals to all ages. Included in this program is the world premiere of Bryan Johanson's "Partita."

The Best of Ballet Oregon

This program highlights the varied styles that have made Ballet Oregon so popular, and features the world premiere of a classical ballet created by Dennis Spaight, accompanied by guitarist Scott Kritzer and members of the Virtuosi Della Rosa.

Pacific Ballet Theatre & West Coast Chamber Orchestra

Visual and auditory splendor combine as the Chamber Orchestra performs first alone, and then accompanies Pacific Ballet Theatre in a selection of dances including "The Moor's Pavane."
