Powell's has something to fit everyone on your list—no matter what size they are—

—or how much they own!

“Well, Flegkin,” said Jenko, irritably. “Here it is, one week before Santa gets back from Florida, and we haven’t even started making a single toy. How are you going to explain that to the Old Man!”
“Chill out, Jenko. This year I’m taking Santa to Powell’s for our Christmas shopping.”
“Powell’s!” Shouted Jenko, the tiny turned-up toes of his shoes shaking with excitement,

“That’s brilliant! Powell’s has something for everyone! There’s storybooks for kids, great big, beautiful art books, photo books, books for fishermen, books for gardeners, books for mystery lovers, hundreds of calendars and—oh gosh, so much more.”
“Yes,” said Flegkin, twisting his little red beard, as was his nervous habit. “It is a pretty good idea, isn’t it.”

Powell’s—more new and used books than any other bookstore west of the Mississippi.
