

portland, oregon

just out

volume 9 number 6

FREE

april 1992

INSIDE:
Weaving the future:
African-American Lesbian
and Gay Conference,
(p. 8)

"The MILITANT HOMOSEXUAL AGENDA"...

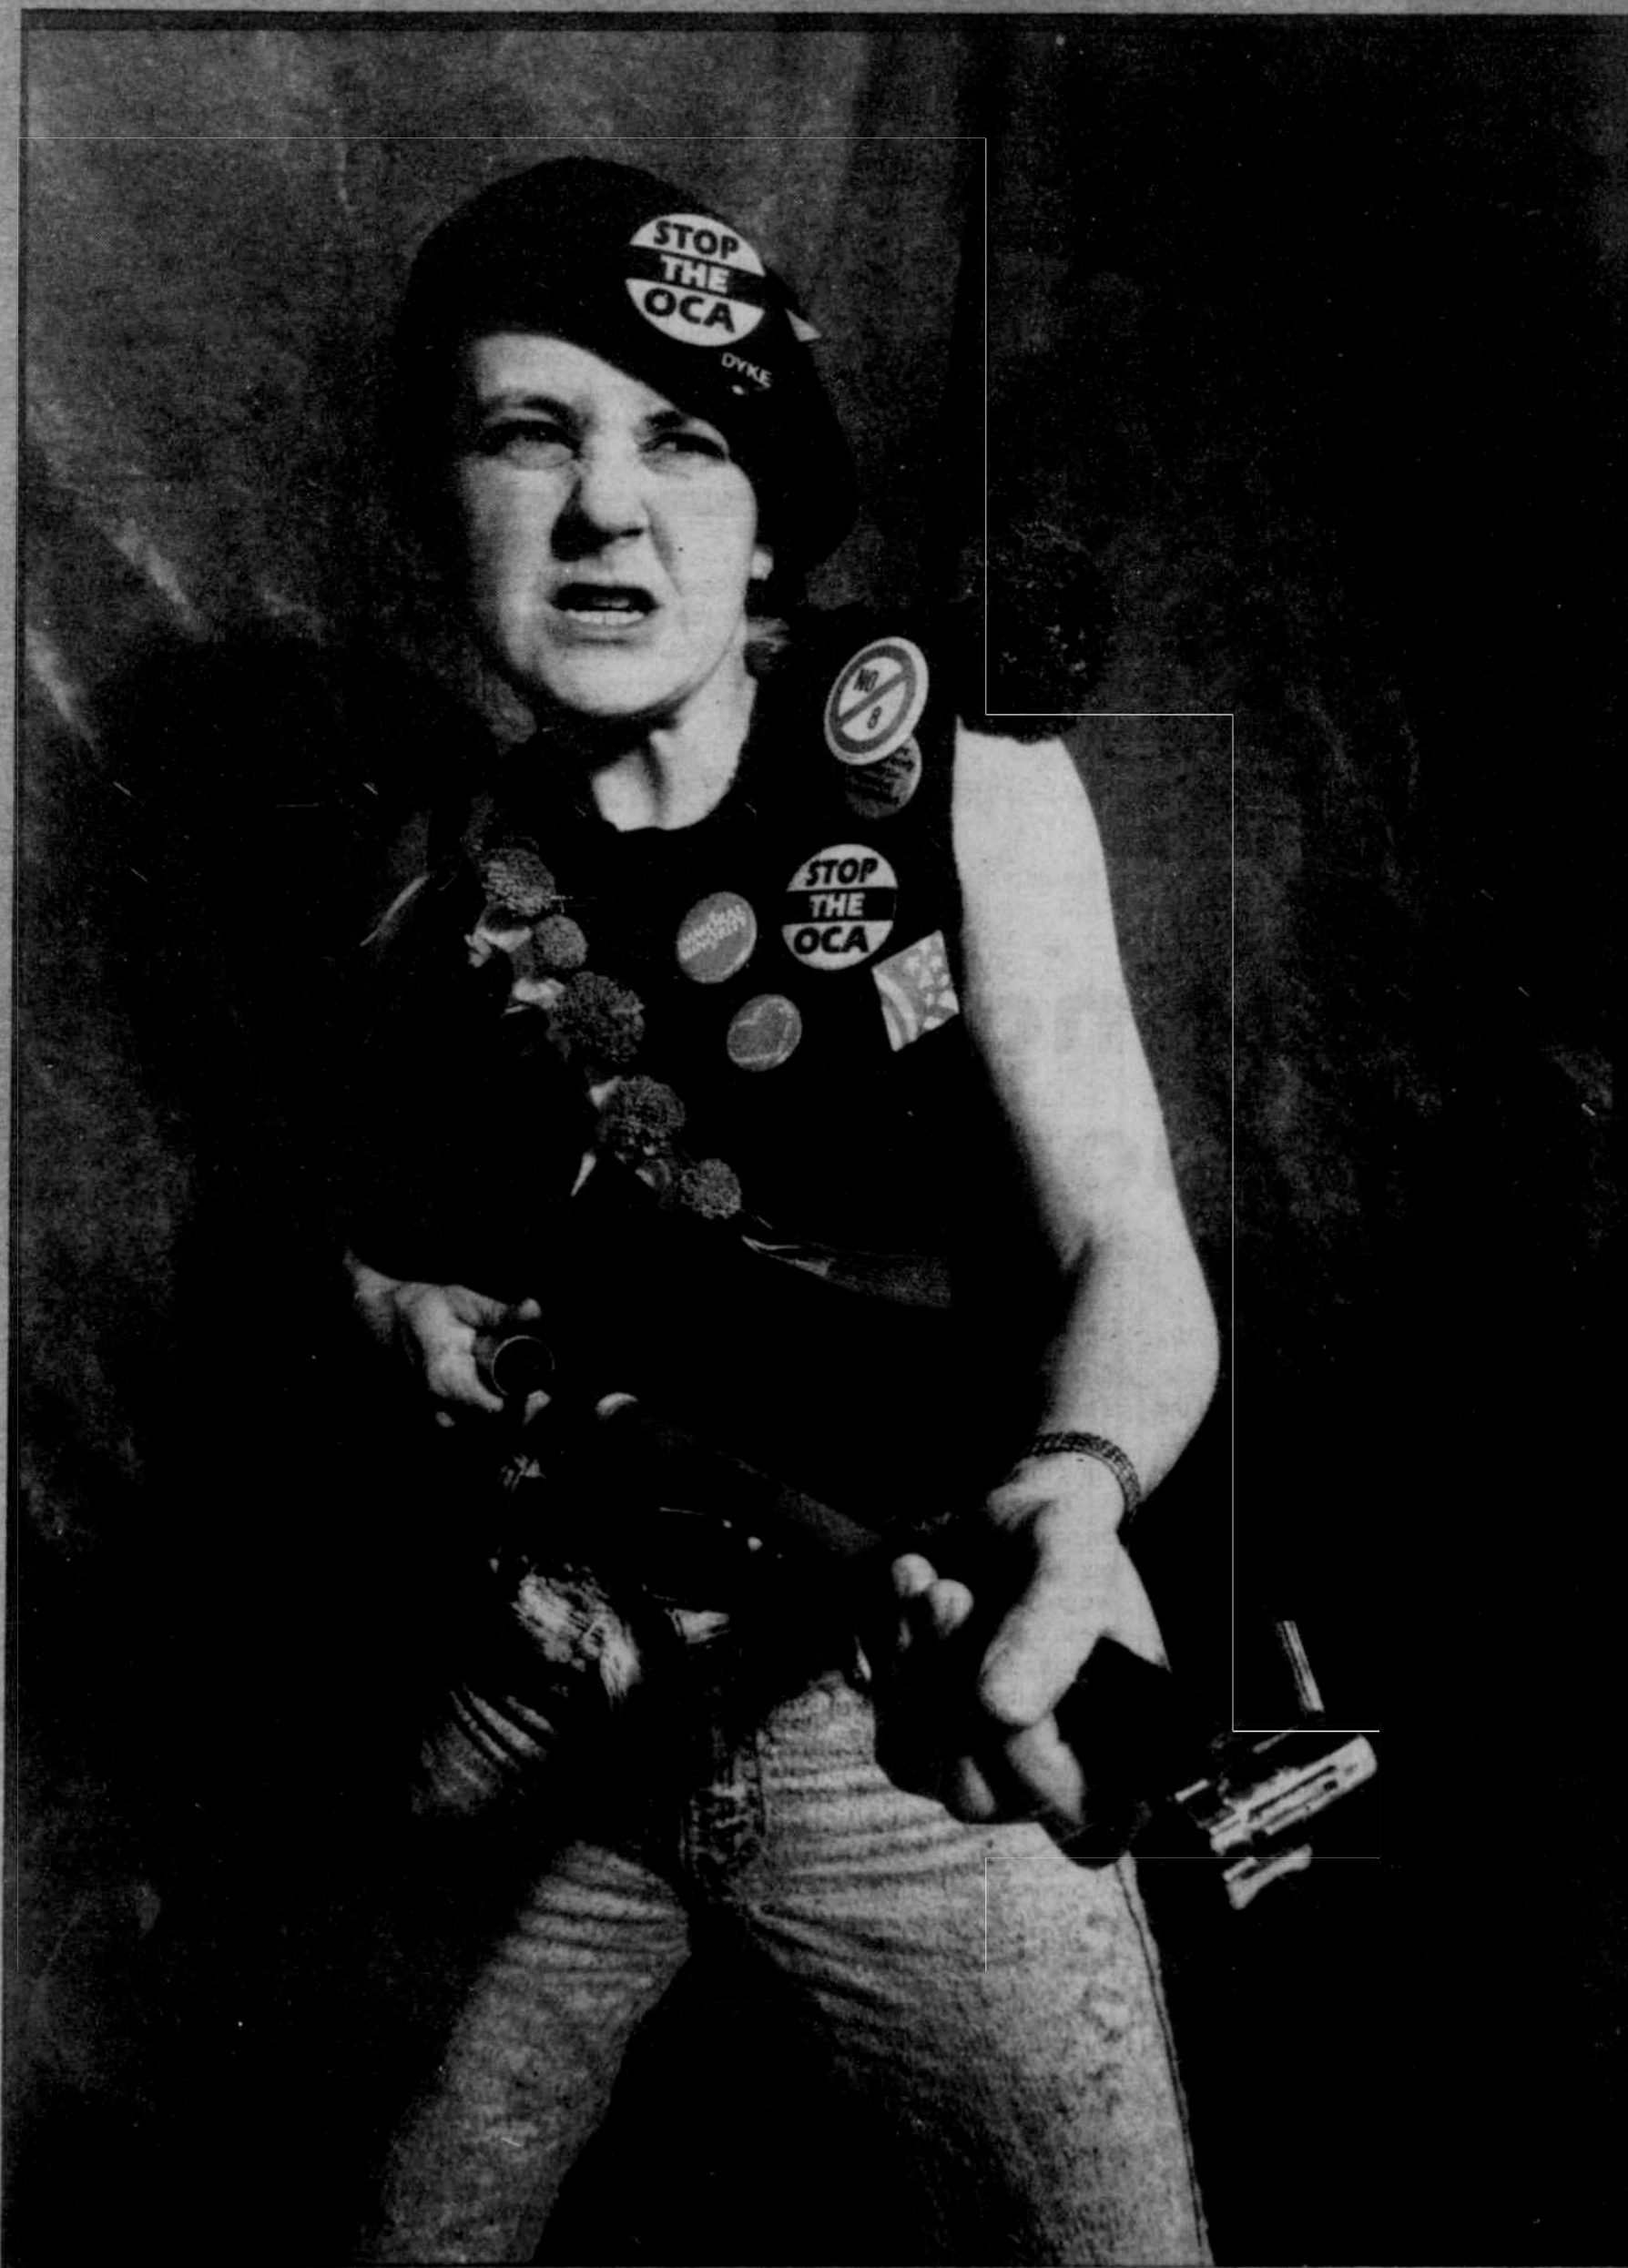

PHOTO BY LINDA KLEWER AND E. ANN HINDS

*When we get mad, you better watch out,
Here is what we'll do;
We go out to the garden,
pick some broccoli,
Bite off their heads
and chew—
Because we're dangerous!*

*Lyrics from I'm Dangerous
by Carol Steinel*

This month, in "outing" our agenda, Carol Steinel assures us that there is indeed a militant agenda. It is monolithic, and exists only in the heads of the OCA.

John Baker calls it an ever-expanding, ever-changing agenda. He sees our future as very bright, and at the forefront of mainstream society.

Alma Banda talks about the oppression we've felt, and the hurtful messages that we've internalized just because we're gay.

Rev. Matthew Nelson gives the ultra right and mainstream religious communities some good advice.

Tom Strong and Andrew Leavitt of Queer Nation lambaste the gay and lesbian community for being so conservative.

Lee Coleman of Log Cabin looks at Republican political strategies.

Donna Red Wing of the Lesbian Community Project wants the world to make sense for all beings.

Greg Duran puts together some lively interviews, including a gay man from Texas who feels Portland is too dangerous for oppressed people and couldn't wait to get home.

And finally, there's Caitlin, who at age seven, is already sure of a supportive community to greet her when she grows up.