HIV: What's Next?

Emerging Issues in the Management of HIV/AIDS

Are the new anti-HIV drugs for me? Should I be afraid of resistance? Can the new tests really help me choose better treatments? What about drugs that are still in the pipeline—should I wait for them? Any news about vaccines and restoring the immune system? If my T-cells go up, do I still need to take drugs for prophylaxis?

If you are asking yourself these questions, you are not alone. The choices are becoming more and more complicated in the management of HIV disease. Come hear nationally-recognized experts talk about these new and emerging challenges and share the newest research information available on these issues.
