

Luxury Defined: MATELASSÉ

Matelassé is a thick fabric which takes its name from the French verb "to stuff." Also called "Marseilles" after the port city where it originated, matelasse is created by a special weaving process that simulates the look of a quilt by using threads of differing weights, causing the fabric to pucker. The patterns can be anything from simple geometric designs to elaborate florals, and though white is the traditional color for matelassé, it looks beautiful in other neutral colors as well. Exceptionally durable and yet still very graceful in appearance, matelassé makes excellent coverlets, pillow shams and bedskirts.
