Luxury Defined: DUVET

In Swiss and Austrian Villages, townspeople used to save the soft down from the undersides of their geese and ducks, and when a young woman married, a sack of down provided by friends and family would be part of her dowry. This "sack" has evolved over the centuries into the duvet, one of the most practical and luxurious forms of bedding available.

Though duvets can be filled with synthetic material, the lightest and warmest are filled with down, which traps the body's natural heat under the covers.

The best duvets are sewn into sections, or "baffles", giving down the breathing room it needs, while also keeping it evenly distributed.
