WHAT IF?

- What if Matt Damon fell madly in love with you?
OR
 - What if all your friends abandoned you when you most needed them?
OR
 - What if you accidentally found a winning lottery ticket and suddenly became fabulously wealthy?
OR
 - What if you suddenly lost all your material possessions and your job?
OR
 - What if you looked in the mirror and discovered you have become a gorgeous hunk?
OR
 - What if you stepped on the scales and discovered you've gained 30 lbs. in one week?
- What if your sense of well being didn't depend on any of the circumstances in your life?*

Almost 2000 years ago Paul writing to a small church at Phillipi stated, "I've learned to be content in every situation." In the course of his life he had been stoned, jailed, whipped and left for dead, yet could say with confidence that, no matter what happened to him, all was well with his soul. Such bedrock conviction in God's enduring love helps us live our lives courageously and authentically.

We do not know how we will face adversity until it is upon us. Many are crushed when fortune tips against them. It is wise to forge our spiritual lives when times are good. It is all too easy to be sucked into the magnetic enticements of our material world and assume that we will somehow escape the pain that is an inevitable part of life.

Growing spiritually requires being rooted in meaningful relationships. Our casual friendships rarely deepen us but intentional spiritual community can. Are you part of one?
