The Portland Police Bureau's Sexual Minorities Roundtable is seeking a new co-chair to replace Lori Buckwalter, center, who left to pursue other commitments mit to a two-year term and be available as an alternate representative to the Chief's Forum, a public advisory group to Mark Kroeker.

Buckwalter announced her resignation in August, saying she was leaving to pursue other commitments. All interested applicants should send a letter of interest to Assistant Chief Mark Paresi, the bureau's liaison to the roundtable, at 111 S.W. Second Ave., Room 1526, Portland, OR 97204.

The group also announced the date of its next quarterly meeting. The roundtable will gather from noon to 2 p.m. Dec. 2 at Multnomah County's Central Library, 801 S.W. 10th Ave.

HAVING FUN WITH MEASURE 9

M. Dennis Moore's Special Righteousness Committee is having some fun with the Oregon Citizens Alliance.

Although his group is a "tongue-in-cheek parody of the OCA's No Special Rights Committee," it is an official political action committee registered with the secretary of state. One of Moore's latest antics was to promptly file six Voters' Pamphlet arguments about Measure 9.

Because he submitted his "pro" arguments before executive director Lon Mabon, at least some of them will appear before the OCA's supportive statements. Moore pulled a similar prank in 1992. "We at the Special Righteousness Committee are just as offended by oyster-eating, shaving and mixed fibers as the OCA is offended by homosexuality, and we have just as much right as the OCA does to change the state constitution to require government discrimination against people whose behavior we don't like," one 1992 letter says.

The letter concludes with "agree with us or burn in hell!" The argument appeared in the "argument in favor" section of the pamphlet.

Although Mabon might have a sense of humor, he apparently doesn't find the humor in Moore's letters. "This just makes a mockery of the system," he told The Oregonian.

The pamphlet will be mailed to voters in mid-October. Because of the large number of ballot measures facing voters Nov. 7, it will be mailed as two volumes.

The committee also is marketing the Lon Mabon Cut-Out Doll, which comes with outfits such as the "Cheerleader for the Message of Morally Correct Orgasms." The one-of-a-kind gift costs $10.

Proceeds will benefit the Voters' Pamphlet submissions. The dolls, designed by Moore and artist Vaughn Frick, are available at Jelly Bean, Gai-Pied, In Other Words and other selected locations.

Write to the Special Righteousness Committee at P.O. Box 1851, Portland, OR 97207, for more information.

TEACHERS WILL PLAY HOST TO REFORMED GAY MAN

The small band of Cleveland High teachers who are accusing their employer, Portland Public Schools, of promoting homosexuality have announced two workshops they hope will help prove their case. The group is headed by Spanish instructor Jose Salano.
