MacRory Tip to Clip

Let Your Fingers Do the Walking

Although the Macintosh introduced the mouse to personal computers back in 1984, sometimes keyboard navigation is faster. In most Macintosh windows you can type the first few letters of an item and jump to it. On the desktop, for example, type "tr" to select the Trash. You can then use the "tab" key to move through items alphabetically or use your keyboard's arrow keys to go left or right among icons.
