WORKSHOP FOCUSES ON WOMEN'S SEXUAL EXPRESSION

Gwenn Cody and Maggie Zadikov will offer the weekend workshop "Sexual Radiance: A Women's Journey of Discovery" Nov. 12 to 14.

The workshop provides women an opportunity to explore ways of increasing their confidence and safely addressing blocks in their sensual and sexual expression. In the past, attendees have been women ages 20 to 60, partnered and single, from across the spectrum of sexual orientation. The workshop offers a respectful environment that encourages exploration while simultaneously honoring individual boundaries.

"We have learned, through consistent feedback, that this unique group experience has allowed attendees to open doors to healing and growth that haven't previously been accessible," Cody says.

LAWRENCE ATTORNEY SPEAKS IN PORTLAND

The Oregon Gay and Lesbian Law Association held its annual dinner Oct. 16 at the University Club. The keynote speaker for the evening was attorney Paul Smith, who made history last year in winning the Lawrence vs. Texas case that overturned anti-sodomy laws.

"Paul's victory before the U.S. Supreme Court allowed all citizens, but especially same-sex couples, to live together free of being unjustly prosecuted for being who they are," OGALLA co-chairman George Eighmey said.

The evening also honored Susie Shepherd, daughter of Bill and Ann Shepherd, founders of the Portland Town Council Legal Resource Group. This group of legal professionals committed to ensuring justice for sexual minorities was the forerunner of OGALLA.

FRIENDLY HOUSE WELCOMES GAY SENIORS GROUP

The Friendly House board of directors has voted unanimously to accept the Elder Resource Alliance as a part of the Friendly House Senior Services program.

"Friendly House looks forward to working with ERA volunteers and staff in service to GLBT elders," ERA member Vaune Albanese said.

The Friendly House program offers seniors an opportunity to interact with the community and share their knowledge and experience. It supports seniors in maintaining their independence with counseling, emergency services and social activities.

CITY CLUB HOSTS "NOW WHAT?" FORUM

City Club of Portland will hold a post-election town hall Nov. 5 titled "Now What? The Impact of the 2004 Election" at 2766 N.E. Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd.

Bill Lunch, political analyst for Oregon Public Broadcasting, will be joined by Oregonian political journalist Jeff Mapes to discuss the 2004 election results, including both national and local races as well as ballot measures. Will the aftermath of this year's divisive election deepen a chasm between citizens? How do citizens pick up the pieces once again to work together across so heavily drawn battle lines? And just what effect will all this have on public life?

Doors open at 11:30 a.m. The program begins at 12:15 p.m. and concludes at 1:15.

Limited general seating, available at the door, is free for members, $5 for nonmembers. Portland Community Media will transmit this program live on Channel 30, and OPB will rebroadcast the program that night at 7.
