For every Portland police officer, there is a story...

Police Chief, Derrick Foxworth reflects on the value of diversity...

"We want our organization to reflect the citizens and the diversity of our community. If you're an individual who wants to truly make a difference, and especially if you're from a different culture, a different ethnicity, or sexual orientation, we want you; we need you. Because only by having a diverse organization are we truly going to be the best organization that we can."

Join us and write the next chapter.
