Sometimes serendipity just gets it right.

Through helping the confused and lovelorn masses, Gina Daggett and Kathy Belge—known to the world as lesbian advice columnists Lipstick & Dipstick, respectively—are clearly on a roll. Readers rank them as the No. 1 advice columnists for Curve, a national lesbian magazine. They're racking up radio and television appearances, including Logo's Round Trip Ticket and WE's Secret Lives of Women. They even get recognized on the street.

And now they're promoting the publication of their very own book, Lipstick & Dipstick's Essential Guide to Lesbian Relationships (Alyson Books, 2007; $16.95 softcover). Their newest endeavor is an examination of virtually every aspect of lesbian love life from the sassy and unapologetic perspectives of a butch and a femme, and it seeks to fill a void with frank discussion about what really goes on behind closed doors in lesbian relationships.
