SMYRC reflects on 10 years

by Teresa Coates • Photos by Marty Davis

Hidden along a nondescript block of Southeast Belmont Street, the Sexual Minority Youth Resource Center looks like just another industrial building. But stepping inside feels like the moment Dorothy opens the door to the color-infused, lively world of Munchkinland. Brightly painted walls, boxes crammed with craft supplies and stacks of books greet visitors, providing a cheerful atmosphere for the more than 1,000 youth who use this facility every year.

The Sexual Minority Youth Resource Center gears up for a slate of 10th anniversary events.
