Events of Note

• The Fifth Annual Portland Queer Documentary Festival—QDoc—continues through Sunday, June 5 with four days of provocative LGBTQ-oriented films. Held at the Clinton Street Theater (2522 SE Clinton St.), the festival welcomes visiting filmmakers and hosts screenings throughout the weekend.

With the generous support of Equity Foundation, QDoc is donating 20 tickets for each film to youth ages 23 and under. To reserve free youth tickets in advance, email qdoyouth@gmail.com. A limited number of free youth tickets will also be available for each film at the door on a last-minute basis.

For a complete schedule, visit queerdofest.org.

• On Saturday, June 4, the Bread and Roses Center (6834 NE Glisan St.) hosts a Public Speaking Workshop for Opinionated People from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The event, sponsored by Radical Women, focuses on articulating political issues and opinions on the spot, with emphasis on audience-oriented, jargon-free speech. Outcomes of the workshop are designed to improve and build upon verbal skills while speaking on controversial subjects in front of people one may or may not know.

On hand will be event coordinators Bryan Fabert and Devin McDonnell, both experienced British Parliamentary/Worlds debaters and coaches who worked with the Humboldt State University Speech and Debate team.

The $20 workshop fee includes lunch and printed materials. RSVPs are appreciated by calling Emma at 503-240-4462 or emailing rwpdx@igc.org.

• Following its special presentation in February on Oregon Public Broadcasting, the Andrew Goldberg-helmed PBS production OUT in America is set for a national premiere Wednesday, June 8 on PBS at 8 p.m. ET/PT.

The hour-long documentary examines personal narratives of belonging against the public milestones of the past 50 years in LGBTQ history. The documentary features interviews and anecdotes from such luminaries as TV personality Andy Cohen, Tales of the City author Armistead Maupin, country music star Chely Wright and humorist Kate Clinton. Check local listings for channel information.
