• The just-released 2011 Human Rights Campaign Healthcare Equality Index boasts two prominent Oregon medical institutions among its highest ranks.

Oregon Health & Science University is highlighted in this year's report, earning top marks for its policies and practices related to LGBT patients and their families. More specifically, OHSU's efforts to ensure health care equality for these patients and their families earned it the distinction of being among the 27 survey respondents to meet all applicable criteria.

Additionally, Kaiser Permanente earned a 100 percent ranking on the Healthcare Equality Index—the third consecutive year it has been named a leader in LGBT health care equality. For a copy of the report, visit hrc.org/hei.
