Nomi Gusta!

Showgirls: The Peaches Christ Experience camps out for PDX Edition

Who can forget the timeless tale of Nomi Malone, a simple, cheeseburger-scarfing, pole-licking dancer with a dream? There's no getting around the enduring cinematic train wreck that is 1995's Showgirls, and our beloved Jessie Spano—née Elizabeth Berkley—transformed from caffeine pill-popping scholar to coke-snorting dingbat.

Yep, this All About Eve for the Gen X set—notorious for its bad just about everything (acting, dialogue, taste)—simply begs for the communal audience experience. Cue Nico Bella and Fleur de Lethal, who will present the PDX Edition alongside a very special guest host, San Francisco midnight movie maven Peaches Christ (aka Joshua Grannell). For one night only, audiences can heckle the screen whoring and much more, from a Nomi vs. Cristal costume contest to drag performances and—extra bonus alert!—a free lap dance with every large popcorn.

Stumptown staples ChiChi and Chonga and Carla Rossi will join Peaches for gloriously tacky preshow action, and fiercer still, the bravest of participants have a chance to compete in the Ultimate Nomi-thon, a five-level obstacle course that involves pulling switchblades, "angry fries," floor thrusts, the critical lip gloss application and, of course, lap dancing. Sabotage and interference aren't only allowed, they're encouraged. You really can't go wrong with this one—which is to say, you really can't go right.

To paraphrase our poor girl-gone-wild Jessie, we're so excited... and maybe just a teensy bit scared.

Sat., Sept. 17, 10:15 p.m. preshow, 11 p.m. screening; Mission Theater, 1624 NW Glisan St.; $8; 21+; mcmenamins.com or fleurdelethal.com.
