

1970
 The fact is, no one knows where to start with AIDS. Now, in the seventh year of the calamity, my friends... can hardly recall what it felt like any longer, the time before the sickness... It come like a slowly dawning horror. At first you are equipped with a hundred different amulets to keep it far away. Then someone you know goes into the hospital, and suddenly you are at high noon in full battle gear... You fight tough, you fight dirty, but you cannot fight dirtier than it."
 Paul Monette, Borrowed Time, 1988
