

Q+A

MJ Day

Q: How do you identify?

A: I identify as a dorky sexy friendly gross femme queer momma.

Q: What do you do for a living?

A: I do a drillion things really. I am a full-time PSU graduate student (adding more endorsements to teach more things), while also teaching high school German and chemistry.

Q: How long have you been in Portland/Oregon? What do you love/hate about it?

A: On June 4th, it will be ("was") my ten-year anniversary with Portland. There are too many things for me to list about what I love about Portland. To name a few: my community, bicycling, performance art, dorky dancing, social art experimentation, food, the art, coffee, and those moments in spring when random people begin to smile when they walk down the street versus being covered in rain and the fashion of being grumpy.

Q: Who do you look up to or revere in the gay community or historically?

A: Harvey Milk. When I learned about him as a 19-year-old, I was instantly inspired to learn about him. So, I packed my bags and took the Green Tortoise to San Francisco and went to all the places I knew he could have been hanging out in the 70s.

Q: What's an important topic that the LGBTQ community should be talking about and isn't?

A: The queer hierarchy, an idea that one is "more" queer, gay, lesbian, trans, because they have only been with queer-gay-lesbian-trans-identified people.
