GRAY POWER

White House staff met recently in Miami for a first-ever conference on aging in the gay community. Gay adults have long been overlooked by a larger community more focused on young gay Americans, experts argue. Focus of attention and resources on the AIDS epidemic also has left seniors out of focus.

New York City-based SAGE (Services and Advocacy for GLBT Elders), an advocacy group for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender older adults, estimates the number of gay Americans who are 65 and over at 1.8 million to 4 million. That population is likely to range from 2.2 million to 5.8 million by 2030.
