cupied the seats of the judges while Chief Justice Cashow told them how trials were carried on. Willamette University was looked over and then, after a swim in the Y. M. C. A. tank, they went on to Portland.

While in Portland the club stayed at the "Y." building, where they received rooms free of charge. Saturday morning they went through Swift's Packing House and expressed great wonder at the various ways they have of getting the most ready for shipping. In the afternoon most of the fellows went through the battleship "Oregon" and then through the Oregonian building. It was the busiest time of the day so they saw all of the machinery in motion. In the evening they went to a Y. M. C. A. boxing and wrestling tournament for the "Y" championships of the Northwest.

Sunday was the last day and the club started for home. They stopped in Salem and went to the Presbyterian church. They arrived home about midnight, a little tired, but nothing seriously wrong.

It is the plan of the club to sponsor a trip like this every year, because it gives a fellow some idea of the different colleges and where he wants to go. He also gets an insight into some of the different trades and industries.

assigned their places and given an hour to type for practice. The contest was started by the blowing of a whistle and at the end of fifteen minutes the shrill sound of this whistle was heard again.

Miss Coombe stated that the world's champion, Tangora, gave an exhibition of his skill, which was very enjoyable. He illustrated the different speeds and stated that concentration is absolutely necessary.

Madge Marcan spoke about the announcement of the winners. It was very tedious to wait for any sign of the success of the team, Madge stated. As usual the toastmaster told about the weather and the like between the announcements of the winners.

Eleanor Coombe told several amusing incidents connected with the trip home. Mr. Foreythe was the object of most of the jokes but had a satisfactory come-back each time.

Mrs. MacCracken gave a talk on the third and highest rank, Torchbearer's, congratulating the few who have attained this rank.

Approximately eighty mothers and daughters attended the banquet. Credit for the dinner is due to Miss Smith and her famous cooking class.

Ladd AddressesStudent Body

On Thursday, April 25, Reverend Earl Ladd spoke before the assembly, his theme, in general, being "Practice Makes Perfect."

Reverend Ladd stated that a man was not judged by what he has done but by what he could do.

"A person," he said, "who has a high average in his worth as a business man, is usually not a success in life.
