SENIORS STAGE FINAL DEBUTS IN CLASS PLAY

JOHNSON AND BECOT STAR
AS WISE-CRACKING
BROTHERS.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Romantic Leads and Mystery
Keep Cast Unfolding
Prison's Past.

The final curtain dropped on a seemingly pleased audience at the Senior play, Friday, May 6.

The advantages of Bunburying were shown by the cast of "The Importance of Being Earnest" last Friday night, after practicing faithfully a almost every evening of the preceding six weeks, the actors did themselves proud the night of the performance.

Both heroes were confirmed Bunburyists. When John Worthington (David Johnson) was in the country he had an (imaginary) scapegrace younger brother, Ernest, whose escapades continually called him to the city, where he immediately became Ernest. Bunbury himself was Algernon Moncrieff's (imaginary) invalid friend whose convenient ruse allowed Algernon (Preston Becot) to do all sorts of things not allowed through Ernest and Bunbury, he managed to meet Jack's ward, Cecily Cardew (Maxine Miller), who promptly fell in love with his curly hair and his supposed wickedness.

WINNERS' NAMES CHISLED ON CUPS

The names of Mary Louise Sander and Napoleon Eskridge will be placed on the Citizenship cup, which was given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter in 1921.

The student body members voted from these candidates: Mary Louise Sander, Dorothy Berstrom, Mary Herbert, Napoleon Eskridge, and Benjamin Giddy. These nominees had lived up to the rules suggested by Mr. and Mrs. Walter. They maintained an average scholarship record, showed willingness to serve the school and fellow pupils, and had Christian ideals. They were prominent in at least one major activity of the school.

This is the fourth couple to be placed on the cup.
