COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS.

In his recent address to the students at the Agricultural College, Mr. J. H. Ackerman, Superintendent of Public Instruction, took the ground that the schools of lower grade are dependent on the colleges for energy and inspiration. Without the colleges, he gave his young audience to understand, the grammar school would pine and lose their vitality. No complete report of Mr. Ackerman's remarks is accessible, but probably this account of the spirit of his address is pretty nearly correct, because the opinions ascribed to him are those which educational leaders have held and practiced for many years. In a measure they are warranted. That the colleges have greatly influenced, or inspired, the lower schools is certain, but it is by no means so certain that the inspiration has been beneficial. Learned faculties have been engaged, for a long time, in laying down work for the primary schools to do. They have prescribed the time and manner of doing it. They have measured off the amount of literature to be studied and enacted rules for dissecting it. Under their directive will Milton has been minutely anatomized, Burke has been resolved into his primitive elements and Tennyson has been reduced to a tripartite mass of vocabules.

The colleges have told the common schools how much algebra they must teach, how much history, how much science. Everything has been precisely measured off, the sentimental and human element eliminated and the irreducible dust of knowledge thrown into examinable shape for the convenience of college entrance requirements. That this process has been a labor-saving one for the faculties there can be little doubt. Whether it has made the schools more useful to the country or not is another question. The conditions which please the learned gentleman who arrange college entrance requirements are not necessarily the best ones for the boys and girls who have to submit to them. From this point of view, while it is admitted with Mr. Ackerman that the colleges have deeply influenced the lower-grade schools, it may be inquired with some seriousness whether they have not done more harm than good. The complaint comes from many quarters that the college professors who have taken a hand in this work were without adequate acquaintance with the demands of modern life; that they have laid down cut-and-dried courses for schools which bear little relevance to future needs of the pupils and that the schools, under their deadly influence, have been made so repulsive to those who ought to get the most benefit from them that boys between the ages of 14 and 20 forsake the classroom and get what education they can in the street. —Oregonian.

PROMISE TO BE GOOD

Seattle Not to Raise Prices Before or During Fair.

Visitors at the coming Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, which opens at Seattle June 1 and closes October 16, will be able to dine to their satisfaction at the city's leading cafes and restaurants at normal prices. To leave no doubt as to the working out of this commendable spirit on the part of Seattle's caterers, they recently met and voted as a body an agreement binding all restaurant, cafe, grill and hotel men to maintain the present prices throughout the exposition time, and no member of the organization to which the caterers belong will be allowed to take advantage of the opportunity to reap additional profits as has been done, despite protests, in previous exposition cities.

The action was taken after I. A. Nadeau Director General of the A.Y.P. had addressed the assembled restaurant men showing them how the increased crowds that would follow reasonable charges would not only add to the credit of the city and success of the exposition, but would mean increase in business.

To the hired help must be given much of credit for the continuance of low prices. Waiters, cooks and helpers of all kinds have entered into an agreement that the present scale of wages shall not be tampered with, during the Fair.

Seattle will not only have a remarkable exposition, but will be able to accommodate the influx of visitors in a way that will be a cause for lasting satisfaction. Hotels are many and reasonable, and with fixing of normal charges at the eating houses, from the most aristocratic to humble lunch counter, tourists may have no fear if not finding accommodations

Go To Monroe Next Saturday

All arrangements have now been completed by the Marine Band and the people of Monroe for the big excursion and picnic which will go from here to that pretty little town next Saturday.

The committee on transportation consists of O. C. Senger, J. Felton, C. R. Colbert, E. Moses and J. F. Dennison, while that on program and arrangements includes C. W. McLymán, Chas. Young and J. J. Howser.

President Kerr, of OAC, is to deliver an address and the ball games will be Junction City vs. Corvallis Cubs and Monroe vs. Corvallis High School.

This excursion and picnic will be a big affair and everything possible has been done to make it enjoyable.

Interscholastic Medals Arrive

E. W. S. Pratt, the jeweler, has on display in his window 43 handsome medals which OAC has had especially made for the winners at the field meet here on Saturday.

These medals are very pretty in design, bearing the name of the Oregon Agricultural College on the face and the event on the reverse side. The gold ones will be given to winners of firsts, silver to seconds and bronze to thirds and it has been decided to retain the same designs for future annual meets.

Mr. Pratt had these medals made under his direction and they are prizes well worthy of the keenest competition.

Union Memorial Service.

Ellsworth Post, G. A. R., will fittingly hold a union memorial service next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the opera house, the sermon to be preached by Rev. H. H. Hubbell, pastor of the Christian church. A cordial invitation is extended to all the ministers of the city, the members of the Relief Corps and the people to join in this service and aid in honoring the memory of those comrades who have answered the last roll call.

Corvallis Canned Apples.

Charles Pernot, the practical farmer and fruitgrower, has started a new industry. He is packing his surplus crop of Spitzenberg apples in quart cans for the local market and is finding a ready sale for the goods. These apples are packed by Mr. Pernot with the greatest care and their delicious flavor is much admired by all who have eaten the fruit. This industry while started in a small way, promises to be a profitable venture for Mr. Pernot.

Better Clean Up All The Week

The tag sale to defray the expenses incident to clean up day next Saturday is now on and the Ladies' Auxiliary and Civic Improvement Society members are making a thorough canvass of the city to interest all the people in the movement.

It has been suggested that every day this week should be devoted to cleaning up by the residents so that it will not be neglected and that by Saturday everything of an objectionable nature around town will be in readiness to be carted away.

In addition to collecting all refuse and rubbish it would be an excellent idea to cut the grass, which is now growing everywhere in the streets and to make the entire city as attractive as possible in readiness for the coming G. A. R. encampment.

WHERE WORLD'S WORKS OF ART WILL BE HOUSED AT A-Y-P. EXPOSITION, SEATTLE.

In this building will be exhibited many priceless paintings. The display will represent the art galleries of the world, for many of these pictures will be the work of the old masters, including rare art exhibits from the Corcoran in Washington, the Art Museum in New York, the Chicago Art Institute and from a large number of private galleries of wealthy men in the United States and Europe, who have for years made the collection of famous old paintings their hobby. Paris and London have made large loans.

At the Alaska-Yukon Pacific Exposition the selection of pictures will be limited to the works of men who have been recognized in the great art competitions in all parts of the world. Many American artists will be represented in the display in the Fine Arts Palace at the Exposition and arrangements have already been made for the shipping of these valuable paintings from art institutes of this country to Seattle.

G. L. Berg, art director of the Exposition, has visited all of the leading galleries of the United States, collecting the pictures suitable for display at Seattle, and writes that the pictures already loaned will constitute one of the greatest art displays assembled for international exhibition.

The Fine Arts Building is a fireproof structure and was one of the first buildings completed on the Exposition Grounds. It cost more than $200,000 to erect the building.
