AN ECHO OF '65.

The following parody on 'Johnny Comes Marching Home' was composed by Hon. John Minto, of Salem, and by him first recited at a memorial service held May 15, 1865, at Battle Creek, on the donation claim of Mrs. Martha A. Minto:

Come, ring the bells and fire the guns, Hurrah! Hurrah! Bring forth your wives and little ones, Hurrah! Hurrah! Hoist up the flag and raise the shout, The boys and girls must all turn out! For we all feel gay, 'since the Johnnies went marching home.

Strubel Goes To Albany. Wallace E. Strubel, secretary

NOTICE!

The Benton County National Bank take a step forward by their determination to comply with the Government requirements as well as with the adopted policies of the better managed banks throughout the country, as will be shown by the following circular letter which is being sent out by them:

No More Overdrafts

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In the early days of our western civilization, when banks were few and far between, it was not always possible to have mail reach its destination promptly and as expected, hence as a matter of fair treatment and reasonableness, bankers quite frequently paid checks drawn against accounts which, according to their books, did not show a sufficient credit balance to cover same, and in consideration of the inconveniences of the time inclined to be lenient with this most unbusiness-like method and allowed OVERDRAFTS.

Since those times and up to the present, the habit of over-drawing of accounts has grown in some cases, become habitual in others and even played as a try at saving interest by a few, but in every case is objectionable, detrimental, and can in no way be regarded as good banking.

Knowing there is no longer use for the continuation of this dangerous system, owing to the present rural delivery of our mails and quick rail service generally, together with our most perfect telephone service, believing that the time has arrived for us to step out in the foreground and take our place among the leading and best managed financial institutions of this great and growing West, and feeling that our action will be appreciated by our depositors, even by our borrowing customers when once they fully understand how and why this practice is pernicious and that it takes from the management the safe and conservative oversight of the loan department, which is the mainstay of the banking business, therefore the officers of this bank have decided to discontinue the practice of granting OVERDRAFTS and have set July 1st, 1909, as the date when such practice shall cease.

Now do not become unduly alarmed, for this does not mean that if a regular customer and entitled to credit, that should you, through error or otherwise, happen to draw your check upon us for slightly more than your balance, that we shall refuse payment, BUT WE DO MEAN that such must be merely temporary and must be covered upon receipt of notice; also that payment will be refused after this date upon a check of such an amount as to be noticeable upon its face that it is not a mistake but rather a pure presumption upon our good will, except where previous arrangement has been made for same. So if your business is such as to make it possible that you might need to overdraw your account occasionally, or if this interests you in any way, COME IN and let's talk it over.

We feel sure you wish to deal with a modern, well managed bank, and upon safe and modern methods, and we know we can arrange all such matters to your entire satisfaction, but we must be allowed to arrange them in accordance with our ideas and the demands of the Government department under which we operate.

We earnestly solicit your co-operation in this business-like step, ask you to come in when your business requires additional funds and we will gladly consider an application for a loan at any time which is in keeping with what your business and your personal reputation shall warrant, for we are established here to serve you and to help in a legitimate business way to conserve the enterprises of our City and Community.

Thanking you for past patronage, soliciting a continuation thereof and assuring you of our appreciation of new customers sent in to us, we beg to subscribe ourselves,

Yours anxious to please,
