Electrolytically-dissolved silver has been used as a water disinfecting agent for centuries and is currently used around the world. Some hospitals still use silver water filters to combat antibiotic-resistant organisms. The World Health Organization (WHO) recommends using silver to disinfect drinking water in developing countries.

Oath Keepers learn about colloidal silver...