Sex offender

According to Lohner, the D.A.'s office has the task of determining if prosecutable charges can be brought for Jones providing false information about his residence. The offense would be a misdemeanor.

Because Jones had registered as a predatory sex offender—albeit at the wrong address—he likely could not be charged with failure to register. Failure to register is a Class C Felony.

District Attorney Matt Shirtcliff was awaiting the reports from the police department at the time this story went to print, and said he will make a determination after having a chance to thoroughly review that information.

“We have a community where parents feel safe letting their kids walk to school. We pride ourselves on having a certain level of safety here for our young children. That's hard to find anywhere anymore and no one wants to see that put at risk,” said Lohner.

A member of Jones's family, who preferred not to be named, stated to The Baker County Press that Jones has expressed plans to go to truck-driving school to become a long-haul trucker. Jones has also expressed those same plans to local police.

Jones's post-prison supervision ended for the Malheur County conviction in February of 2006, and according to Tomlin, he is not on parole in her state either, therefore is allowed to travel state-to-state freely.

The descriptions for sexual offenses in Oregon can be found in ORS 161.405, 161.435, 161.450, 161.455, 161.525, 161.535, 163.215, 163.225, 163.235, 163.266, 163.275, 163.305-689 & 181.805(5).

Summer events

Bell says that Kurt Miller, co-owner of the Baker Truck Corral, purchased a supply of the necessary electrical equipment, allowing the Hells Canyon Motorcycle Rally to use it one week and the vendors at the park for Jubilee the week after.

Powder River Electrical and Bob Whelan of Whelan Electric worked together on setup and takedown.

Meanwhile, the officers from the Baker City Police Department, Oregon State Police and the Baker

County Sheriff's Office patrolled through the weekend at both events, doubling the foot patrols from last year with 11 BCPD officers working back-to-back weekends.

Barring illness or a family emergency, said Police Chief Wyn Lohner, everyone was scheduled—including Baker County's reserve officers.

Lohner says he rides at the front of the Jubilee and Shriners' parades each year, with officers lining the route.

This year, two of the officers were called out right before the parade, returning in a nick of time for the passing of the floats.

“The hot spot is the beer garden,” said Lohner. “We want people to have a good time but be responsible. We want them to go home.”

This year's incidents included a stolen phone and a disturbance during which two parties needed separated at the Rising Sun after leaving the beer garden, a child left unattended in the bouncy house, hats stolen from a vendor, one minor in possession at the beer garden and a no-show from the Oregon Liquor Control Commission.

• I don't know who sneaked into the office and left a bouquet of flowers on the counter but they were very lovely. We were having a hard time in the office due to a loss and they made us all a bit cheerier.
