6 p.m. - 9 p.m. (doors open at 5:30) Livestock Grazing and Pace / Scale of Restoration Umatilla and Wallowa-Whitman National Forests Clarkston Campus of Walla Walla Comm. College, 1470 Bridge St., Rm. 187 Clarkston, WA 99403.

Tues., Dec. 15, 2015
6 p.m. - 9 p.m. (doors open at 5:30) Livestock Grazing Wallowa-Whitman National Forest N. Powder Elementary NW corner of G and 4th Streets, North Powder, OR 97867.

A facilitator will ensure that everyone in attendance has time to speak, listen to others, and propose solutions. The Forest Service is working with partners to schedule additional meetings, which will be announced in the near future via email and news updates.

In 2014, the Forest

Service released a draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) and Proposed Revised Land Management Plan related to the Blue Mountains Forest Plan Revision and received over a thousand comment letters. Based in part on that feedback, the three Blue Mountains National Forests have worked with stakeholders to identify topics for further discussion – including the Pace and Scale of Restoration, Livestock Grazing, Access, and Wilderness.

A Forest Plan describes the social, economic, and ecological goals of a National Forest and provides a framework for future management decisions. The National Forest Management Act of 1976 requires each National Forest to prepare a Forest Plan and revise it every 15 years to address changing needs and conditions. The current Forest Plans for the Wallowa-Whitman, Umatilla, and Malheur National Forests are from 1990, and the Blue Mountains region has changed significantly since that time.

Meeting notes from previous Forest Plan Revision meetings are available at <http://www.fs.usda.gov/goto/BlueMountainsPlanRevision>, and the notes from new meetings will be posted to this website as well.

For more information, please contact Peter Fargo, Public Affairs Officer for the Blue Mountains Forest Plan Revision, at 541-523-1231.

Walden, Merkley meet over Oregon water issues

U.S. Rep. Greg Walden (R-Ore.) issued the following statement on a meeting he has convened with key Congressional leaders to discuss Klamath Basin water issues:

"All year, Sen. Jeff Merkley (D-Ore.) and I have worked closely with a broad range of parties in the Klamath Basin and key leaders in the Congress to find a path forward to solve the long running water problems in the Basin.

"Tomorrow, Sen. Merkley and I have convened a meeting with key leaders in the Congress to discuss a way forward. Attendees will include Rep. Rob Bishop (R-Utah), the Chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee (which has jurisdiction over this issue), Rep. Tom McClintock (R-Calif.), the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Federal Lands, and Rep. Doug LaMalfa (R-Calif.) whose Northern California district includes three out of the four dams slated to be removed under the Klamath Basin Restoration Agreement (KBRA) and a large portion of Klamath Basin water users. Sen. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) will also attend, along with Rep. Jared Huffman (D-Calif.).

"During this session of Congress, neither committee of jurisdiction in the Senate or the House has taken any legislative action regarding the KBRA."

Oregon's 2016 hunting, fishing licenses now on sale

SALEM, Ore.—Oregon's 2016 hunting and fishing licenses are on sale now and make great holiday gifts—especially a new youth license for kids that permits fishing, hunting and shellfishing all year for just $10!

The new 2016 Sport Fishing and Big Game Regulations will also be in stores this week. Hunters and anglers will notice a new look to the regulations this year.

"We've heard from sportsmen that the regulations can be confusing," said Rick Hargrave, ODFW Information and Education Administrator. "We've made an effort to simplify them and hope they are easier to understand."

The effort included contracting with a different publisher, J.F. Griffin, to produce the regulations.

A new searchable web version of the regulations will be available next week at ODFW's regulations webpages.

In the meantime, PDF copies of 2016 regulations are posted at the hunting and fishing regulations web page.

Prices for adult licenses and tags increase for 2016 (see 2016 Recreational Fee List), the first fee increase since 2010.

However, ODFW will continue to charge lower prices for youth to keep fishing and hunting affordable for families.

The popular Juvenile Sports Pac is still just $55 in 2016 and prices will be lower than in 2015 for some youth sportsmen.

A new combination youth license means all kids age 12-17 (non-residents, too) can fish, hunt, crab and clam all year long for just $10.

This license includes the Columbia River Endorsement; add a Youth Combined Angling Tag for just $5. (Previously, costs for youth were: hunting license $14.50, fishing license $9 or $18.75 with Columbia River Endorsement for ages 14-17, combined angling tag $8.50 for ages 14-17, shellfish license $7 for ages 14 and over.)

New license types are also available, including Premium Hunts.

These are Oregon's new two or three month any-weapon deer, elk and pronghorn hunts. Premium Hunts are similar to the auction and raffle tags people pay thousands for, but they cost the same as a regular tag and are an additional hunting opportunity (meaning hunters can still draw a 100, 200, 400 and 600 series tag).

Most wildlife management units have one deer and one elk tag available; 29 areas also have a pronghorn tag.

Also new this year, the Daily Angling and Shellfish License is ideal for visitors to the coast who want to fish, crab and clam for just one day. Cost is $27.50 for residents and non-residents.

Pioneer license holders (age 65 and older, 50-year resident of Oregon) will now pay $6 for a combination license, which was previously free. The change allows ODFW to recoup an average of $20 per paid license holder in federal grants.

These federal grants are generated from an excise tax on hunting and fishing equipment and are provided to states based on the number of paid license holders. These grants are important because they help fund fish and wildlife management projects that provide fishing and hunting opportunities.

All 2016 licenses and tags can now be purchased online and at license sales agents and ODFW offices that sell licenses.

To give a license or tag as a gift, you will need the hunter or angler's full name and date of birth (day, month, year). If the person has had a license before, make sure you have their ODFW hunter/angler ID number which is found at the top of their license and stays the same every year.

If you are purchasing a license for someone who has never had a license, you will have to provide his or her social security number in compliance with Federal and State laws.
