Richard Mack Augenfeld

Baker City, 1943-2016

Richard Mack Augenfeld passed away peacefully at his home in Baker City on April 3, 2016. He was born in Charleston, South Carolina in 1943 to Dr. Robert and Frances Augenfeld, but primarily grew up in New York. Mack held an undergraduate degree from Adelphi University and an MBA from NYU. He spent many years in Gainesville at the University of Florida working toward a Doctorate degree while employed as a respiratory therapist. His fondest academia experience was at University of California Berkeley in the heyday of the early 1960s. Research was his lifelong passion. A prominent highlight of his early career was successful employment at the American Museum of Natural History. Mack also had a strong desire for travel. He visited many far-reaching parts of the globe, including extensive parts of Asia. Mack lived in China and taught Economics and English. Mack met and married his wife Namphet in Thailand. They lived there for several years together prior to relocating to Oregon to be near his daughter. Many will remember his recent significant contribution and service on Baker City Council. He is survived by his devoted wife Namphet, Baker City, three children and several grandchildren. There will not be a service. Online condolences may be shared at www.tamispinevalleyfuneral-home.com.

Parkinson's journey presentation to be held at Crossroads

East to West ~ A Parkinson's Journey, Parkinson's & Mucuna Community Event will be held April 25th, 6 p.m. at Crossroads Art Center 2020 Auburn Ave, Baker City. The presentation will highlight Tanya Denne's India Research Trip Video. The community event will also highlight two months of research in India regarding Parkinson's disease and the plant Mucuna pruriens. Background for Event Over the past five years Tanya Denne, a Baker graduate, has been researching the Ayurvedic plant Mucuna pruriens and its potential to treat Parkinson's Disease. Her neurological research pursuit was inspired when her grandmother passed from Alzheimer's disease. Tanya's persistence and dedication to Mucuna research lead her, and a team of four, to the roots of traditional medicine in southern India. This video highlights tribal field work, lab work, and communication with Indian Parkinson's researchers, chemists, ethnobotanists, professors and physicians. The purpose of this research was to help bridge the gap between eastern and western Parkinson's medicine. Her research was intended to increase cultural sensitivity and awareness for the advancement of global medicine. She will be discussing her future plans regarding the Mucuna seeds brought back from India, and her upcoming involvement with the World Parkinson's Congress hosted in Portland, Oregon September 21-23rd 2016.

EOU to host Lars Larson

Eastern Oregon University students, faculty and community members are invited to a free presentation by talk radio show host Lars Larson Tuesday, May 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the

Gilbert Center on campus. The event is the capstone project of Brittany Hargrove, a senior media arts and communication student at EOU, and is sponsored by the Union County Republicans. Larson is a nationally known radio host, award-winning news journalist, and regular guest on Fox News and other radio and television news outlets.

Currently based in Portland, he started his media career at age 16 in Tillamook for The Mighty 1590 KTIL, and later worked for numerous radio and television stations such as KPTV and KOIN. His long-running radio program, "The Lars Larson Show," airs in the morning in the Northwest and in the late afternoon across the country. "I am so excited to bring a bold speaker like Lars to campus," Hargrove said. "I have been listening to him with my dad since I was a tiny girl, so this is something that I have been aspiring to do for many years."

"As a media arts and communication student and an avid political aficionado, I cannot wait to hear what he has to say," Hargrove added. "Conservative, liberal, or independent, everyone in the audience will surely take something away from Lars' speech."

EOU students who attend can enter a raffle for a chance to win a $50 gift card from Amazon or Safeway donated by Lane Farms, or a gift certificate for lunch for two donated by Joe Beans.

For more information contact Hargrove at hargrob@eou.edu.
