State senate candidate Stormy Ray visits Huntington

BY EILEEN DRIVER

State Senate candidate Stormy Ray, who is running as a democratic candidate for District 30, came to Huntington April 20th to fundraise for her campaign and to spread the message of her bid for office.

Ray is running against incumbent Republican Senator Ted Ferrioli, from John Day, the current State Senator for District 30.

Stormy Ray became known to most Oregonians while fighting for the legalization of medical marijuana in the State Capitol and to the citizens of Huntington when she spoke before the city council to encourage them to allow medical dispensaries.

According to her campaign manager William Nance of Nyssa, "Stormy has been watching the State legislature for years and feels there is a real need to bring common sense to government thinking."

Ray is a grandmother, a person with Multiple Sclerosis, and a chief cosponsor of the Oregon Medical Marijuana Act (OMMA), passed by voters into law in 1998. She is running on a platform that addresses the need to steer economic growth into the right direction for individual communities, the need to develop and maintain a quality educational system, and ensuring safe, healthy and productive communities.

Free smoke detectors

BY KERRY McQUISTEN
News@TheBakerCountyPress.com

The Baker City Fire Department's free smoke detector giveaway began last fall, and since that time, says Fire Chief Mark John, the department has given away and installed somewhere between 250 and 300 of them.

Assistant Chief Dan Curtis "has installed ninety-plus-percent of those, which is really remarkable for a department this size."

John plans to continue giving away and installing the detectors as long as they're able to keep getting a supply—they've so far been able to order bunches of 100 at a time from the State Fire Marshall's office.

"It just adds another measure of safety," said John.

The smoke detectors aren't available for multi-family units like apartment complexes—single-family homes only. Home renters or owners can request an installation. One alarm in each bedroom and on each floor of a home is the recommendation.

As John pointed out, "People generally succumb to smoke inhalation." Far fewer die due to direct contact with flames during a fire.

Smoke alarms can be requested by calling 541-523-3711 on a first come, first served basis.

Richland tree giveaway ahead

The 2016 Annual Tree and Weed Spray Giveaway in Eagle Valley is coming.

The Eagle Valley Soil and Water Conservation District will be joining the Baker County Weed Department on Friday, May 6th for the annual Herbicide and Tree Giveaway in Richland at the Y just outside town.

SWCD staff will be giving out trees on a first-come first-served basis, beginning at 8 a.m. that morning.

Trees are great conservation tools, as they help clean the air, prevent soil erosion, save water, and prevent water pollution.

According to SWCD staff, the type of tree being given away this year is the aspen.
