UNANDER SPEAKS OUT ON CIVIL RIGHTS

Sig Unander, candidate for the United States Senate and ex-state Treasurer of Oregon, is the only Republican candidate thus far to take a definite and constructive stand on the very important problem of Civil Rights. Having a strong conviction on the welfare of the minority groups, the former vice chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission stated "We must not lose sight of the tremendous part played by the minority groups in the progress and betterment of our state and nation."

In a television interview on Tom Lawson McCall's "Viewpoint" Unander was the only candidate of the five present on the show to state his view on Civil Rights. He indicated that this problem was one of the important planks upon which he was going to base his campaign. In a special statement released to the Oregon Mirror, Unander said: "There should be a continuing, persistent and effective pressure to expand civil rights in every field, but federal policy should recognize that time will be required to achieve complete results in some areas of the south. In states like Oregon, there should be no delay or equivocation."

Unander went on, in the television interview, to refer to Senator Wayne Morse as the "talking senator" whose 17 year record in the Senate is "a great big zero." He said Oregon could and should have part of the $60 million annual payroll that is now going to military personnel in Washington.

The problem of the United Nations is another place where Unander places great emphasis. He stated that the United Nations is not the "effective and international arbiter" that it was intended to be when it was conceived in San Francisco in 1945. He attacked Morse for his belief that all issues of international tone should be referred to the United Nations. "The authority and effectiveness of the Security Council was destroyed by exercise by Russia of over 100 vetoes. The Russians announced flatly that they would abide only by those decisions that they felt were in their national interest."

The Unander for Senator Headquarters is located at S. W. 3rd and Morrison and welcome visitors. Coffee and cookies are free and there is a great need for volunteer help. Interested persons are urged to offer their time and services.

Daisy Williams Project Big ?

What Is Argument?

What Is Solution?

Because of recent news releases appearing in the daily papers relative to studies of the Albina area by the Portland City Planning Commission, the question has been raised by Albina residents as to how such public announcements affect the development of the 58-unit DAISY B. WILLIAMS low-rent housing project at the site originally announced in the Albina area.

Land use studies of the entire Albina area are currently being conducted by the Portland City Planning Commission. However, the Housing Authority is proceeding on schedule with the DAISY B. WILLIAMS project; and as soon as the property appraisals, now being conducted, are completed, the Housing Authority's negotiator will proceed to take options for the property.
