GRAYSON SEEKS REELECTION

Mark A. (Buck) Grayson has filed for reelection as Public Utilities Commissioner of Portland.

Since taking office as one of the City's five Council members in 1959, Grayson has headed the Department of Public Utilities. Included in his jurisdiction is the Bureau of Water Works.

"Our water system has been vastly improved in the last few years," Grayson said in announcing his intention of seeking reelection, "but there are still goals to be reached. Planning for the maximum utilization in our city's great watershed to care for a growing area is one of my fundamental objectives."

Grayson was the Administrative Assistant to Finance Commissioner Ormond R. Bean for 10 years prior to his present assignment.

A veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict, Grayson is a commander in the Naval Reserve.

He was born in Portland, attended Ockley Green Grade and Jefferson High Schools, and at Oregon State University won the Mountain States Power Award for having excelled both scholastically and athletically throughout his schooling.

He formerly was a partner with his brother, Bobby, in the White Rock Bottling Company of Oregon, which they founded. Earlier, he was an executive of the Union Oil Company.

Long interested in amateur athletics, Grayson is a past president of the Oregon Amateur Athletic Union and helped organize the Little League baseball movement in Portland. He is 54. His wife is the former Betty Evans, a world's champion softball star of the post-war period.
